ITALY'S ATTITUDE LESS HOSTILE

LIKELY TO ATTEND LEAGUE MEETING

ABYSSINIA WILL FIGHT IF INVADED

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1924. Received, July 15, 8.30 a.m.)

Geneva, July 14.
If a meeting of the League of Nations Council is called on July 24, it is learned here that the Italian Government will in all probability send representatives. The authorities in Rome are adopting a less hostile attitude towards the League of Nations feeling that Great Britain is unlikely to insist that League action be taken against Italy in the event of a war with Abyssinia. Italy considers she has a very strong case to put before the League and will probably move that Abyssinia should be asked to relinquish League membership.—Reuter Special.

AVENOL'S FINDING.

London, July 14.
M. Avenol, Secretary-General of the League of Nations, left this afternoon for Paris.

He stated before his departure that the League Council would meet on July 25, as arranged at the last session, unless a scheme of arbitration between the Italian and Abyssinian Governments was introduced before that time.

He declared he had found among the British public and in the House of Commons strong support of the collective peace system.—Reuter Special.

WILL FIGHT INVASION

New York, July 14.
"In no circumstances will we accept a railway or other zone in or through Ethiopia to be administered and policed by Italy," declared the Emperor of Abyssinia in a special cabled message to the New York Times, in response to telegraphic queries.

"History teaches that the creation of such a zone is inevitably followed by annexation.

"We shall continue our peaceful efforts and only if Italy invades Ethiopia will we offer armed resistance."—Reuter.

IMPORT TAX EXEMPTION

SOUGHT BY JOURNAL FOR PHILIPPINES

New York, July 14.
The Journal of Commerce in an editorial in its current issue urges Congressional enactment this session of a bill for the exemption of imports of denatured coconut oil from excise tax.

The article says: "Especially as the benefits of the coconut oil tax on the oil used in soap-making are going in large measure to foreign tallow producers, a modification of our tax would be a worth-while and friendly gesture towards the Philippine Islands."—United Press.

London, July 14.
Mr. Joseph Cohen, father of "General" Morris Abraham Cohen, who has had a distinguished military career in China, died at Manchester to-day, aged 72.

His last wish was to meet his son before he died and the son, hurrying from his home in Hongkong, arrived in Manchester in time for the wish of the dying man to be realised.

Cohen was for many years the personal body-guard of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen.—Reuter.

Britain's Exports Increasing

STRIKING ADVANCE FOR HALF YEAR

SHRINKAGE IN IMPORTS

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1924. Received, July 15, 4 a.m.)

London, July 14.
Although Great Britain's exports for June declined compared with the May figures, the returns for the first six months of 1935 show an increase of £16,500,000 when compared to the first six months of 1934, and nearly £35,000,000 compared with the 1933 figures.

Exports for June totalled £33,000,000, a decrease of over £2,000,000 compared with May, but an increase of £8,000,000 over June of 1934, which is the fairest comparison when an indication of the trend of commerce is sought.

Imports for June were £58,000,000, a decrease of over £6,000,000 compared with June last. Thus the balance of trade against the country is slightly less top-heavy.

The imports into Britain during the first six months of the year amounted to £359,000,000, a decrease of nearly £3,000,000 compared with the first half of 1934, but an increase of £30,000,000 compared with 1933.—Reuter Special.

AMERICA HEADED FOR INFLATION

EX-BUDGET DIRECTOR GIVES WARNING

New York, July 13.
The former Director of the Budget, Mr. Lewis Williams Douglas, in a volume entitled "Liberal Tradition," issues a warning that a continuation of Government expenditures will cause monetary inflation and eventual political dictatorship.

He decried the Government's plan to spend its way out of the depression.

Further he planned for economy and urged free competition and flexibility of prices and costs, and the mobility of labour and goods.

Also he advocated a modification of tariffs, with the purpose of maintaining a balance between agriculture and industry.

The volume also urges a sound currency and reformed banking system together with a responsible fiscal policy "which will assure stability of exchanges."—United Press.

FURTHER BELFAST RIOTING

FOUR KILLED IN STREET FIGHTS

TROOPS AID POLICE

Belfast, July 14.

A grave and tense situation exists in Belfast to-day.

After three days of intermittent rioting and looting, and the setting of a number of fires in stores and private houses, the casualties are now four dead and 73 seriously injured. This number of wounded, it is officially reported, are in hospital. How many more may be lying hidden, fearing the consequences of their rash acts, it is impossible to estimate. There are a great number of minor injuries among rioters and police.

Having set fire to twelve houses in York Street, where the fighting broke out three days ago, and having completely wrecked thirty-eight others, the mob spread its activities abroad to-day and reached Sandy Row District where it set fire to a shop.

Two other shops were burned after being wrecked and looted.

Two companies of troops of the Border Regiment, with steel helmets and rifles, and bayonets ready, have reinforced the police.

BRITISH LEGION IN GERMANY

WELCOMED BY OLD ENEMIES

Berlin, July 14.
Hundreds of thousands of Germans who fought against Great Britain's armies during the Great War were eagerly awaiting the arrival of their former enemies to-day when the British Legion delegation arrived here.

The visitors have been nicknamed "The Delegation Front Line Fighters" here.

CANTON EMPLOYEE BEFORE COURTS

70 DEPOSITORS AFFECTED

Canton, July 15.

A remarkable case of embezzlement of Postal Savings Bank deposits through signature forgery and false entries in the books, has been disclosed here following the arrest of a book-keeper attached to the Kwangtung Postal Savings Bank.

The man has now been handed over to the local courts where he is being prosecuted on a charge of embezzlement.

It is stated that the irregularities started in April, 1932, and have been going on for four years. About 70 depositors' accounts have been affected.

The breach was not discovered until recently owing to the accused man's extremely clever trick of covering up the discrepancies.

The amount missing totals $97,549.—Reuter.

RUSSIA TO BUY IN AMERICA

ONE YEAR TRADE TREATY SIGNED

Washington, July 14.

The Department of State has announced that the American Ambassador to the Soviet, Mr. William C. Bullitt and the Soviet's Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, M. Maxim Litvinoff, have signed a one year Trade Pact at Moscow.

The pact will include the assurance that Russia will purchase $30,000,000 worth of American goods, in exchange for which the United States grants Russia tariff concessions similar to other countries under reciprocal trade agreements, such as Belgium, Haiti and Sweden.

The agreement is calculated to greatly expand American exports to Russia and to put an end to the long period of unsatisfactory trade relations since 1917.

The export of $30,000,000 worth of American goods to Russia next year would be an increase of more than one hundred per cent. over last year's exports to Russia.—United Press.

GERMANY'S DAVIS CUP VICTORY

WILL MEET AMERICA IN NEXT ROUND

VON CRAMM AND MENZEL IN THRILLING DUEL

Prague, July 14.

Germany has qualified to meet the United States on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday next in the Inter-Zone final of the Davis Cup Lawn Tennis Competition, their team to-day beating Czechoslovakia by four matches to one. Germany's representatives, G. von Cramm, runner-up to Fred Perry at Wimbledon, and L. Henkel, both won their matches to-day, following the victory scored by von Cramm and Kay Lund against Menzel and Josef Malacek in the doubles match yesterday.

Baron von Cramm clinched the issue to-day when he was matched against Menzel in the first of the singles matches. He won by scores of 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 5-7, 6-1.

It was a hard and thrilling match with many long rallies. The games went with the service in the first set until 3-2 was called in von Cramm's favour. Menzel's serving was not of the usual high standard and von Cramm took the next four games in a row.

MANY DIE IN MINE DISASTER

EXPLOSION TRAPS SIXTY-THREE

NO HOPE OF RESCUE

Fukuoka, July 15.

Many lives have been lost in a coal gas explosion in the Mitani Tagawa Colliery here.

Three of the dead have been discovered and it is believed that 63 more are buried hopelessly in the deep shafts of the mine. Six seriously injured miners have been rescued.

Anxious relatives are crowded at the pit-head to-day waiting while rescue gangs search for the victims, and attempt to tunnel through the masses of fallen rock and coal to where the trapped men are believed to be lying.

Experts, however, assume that the miners who were trapped below when the explosion occurred have no chance of escape. If they were not killed by falling rock or suffocated in the gas fumes, they can scarcely survive the length of time required for relief gangs to tunnel into them, they state.—Reuter.

Air Tragedy Explained

SIX KILLED WHEN PLANE CRASHES

The Hague, July 14.

Four of the crew and two passengers were killed and thirteen passengers and one of the crew were saved when the big Dutch airliner, from Amsterdam to Hamburg, Copenhagen and Malmö, Sweden, crashed at the Schiphol aerodrome, Amsterdam, early to-day.

An official statement says that as the liner was starting for Hamburg her two engines suddenly failed, just as she left the ground. The pilot attempted a forced landing and ran into a dyke. The plane was wrecked and caught fire.—Reuter.

In the second set von Cramm was down 3-0. He was missing many shots that normally would have been easy for him. Menzel led at 4-1 but the German was now placing most accurately and reeled off the remaining games for the second set.

Menzel played magnificent tennis in the third set while von Cramm also made some wonderful returns on the back-hand and down the side lines, and thrilled the crowd with his brilliance.

TIRING SET

Baron von Cramm led 2-0 but Menzel increased pressure, putting tremendous power behind his shots and took the lead at 4-3. Every point was hard fought for and after nine games the Czech won the set.

In the fourth set Menzel broke through to lead at 4-2, and he again led at 5-3 before winning by 7-5. This set lasted 35 minutes.

Menzel was very tired when the final set started and appeared to be affected by the heat. Von Cramm was playing in beautiful style, particularly with his back-hand strokes, and won a fine match by taking the final set at 6-1.

HENKEL BEATS CASKA

Henkel outplayed and out-generalized Caska in the final match of the tie and won by 2-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-0.

Caska began well with quick accurate play in the first set but once the German found his form his superiority was pronounced. Henkel played a great variety of strokes with masterly technique.—Reuter.

EVEN CHANCES

America's Davis Cup team has not yet been announced. It will probably consist of Allison and Van Ryn as the doubles pair, who were runners-up at Wimbledon, and only fell when confronted by the powerful Australian combination, Crawford and Quist; Donald Budge, the youthful Californian star who was a quarter-finalist at Wimbledon; and Sydney Wood, semi-finalist, whom von Cramm defeated in the Wimbledon tournament to advance through the last bracket with Fred Perry, the champion.

Von Cramm and Kay Lund will probably be Germany's doubles pair, and the mighty Baron, with L. Henkel, will certainly be the singles players. Von Cramm is virtually certain of two matches, and Henkel has an even chance of winning against Budge, which therefore makes it very necessary for America to take the doubles match and for Wood to beat Henkel. A win in either of these matches will almost certainly give Germany the honour and put her three-man team into the final.

IF CHILD IS CROSS WON'T EAT

Take Doctor's Advice
Results Will Surprise You

If your precious child won't eat without coaxing, is nervous and underweight, do what doctors the world over advise: Give him a little Castoria and you will see a marked improvement the first day.

Authorities have found intestinal absorption of poisons to be the cause of most child ailments. Even when the child's habits may seem regular, poisons seep through the system and do damage. The stomach is upset. Foods do not digest properly. The nervous system is delicate balance.

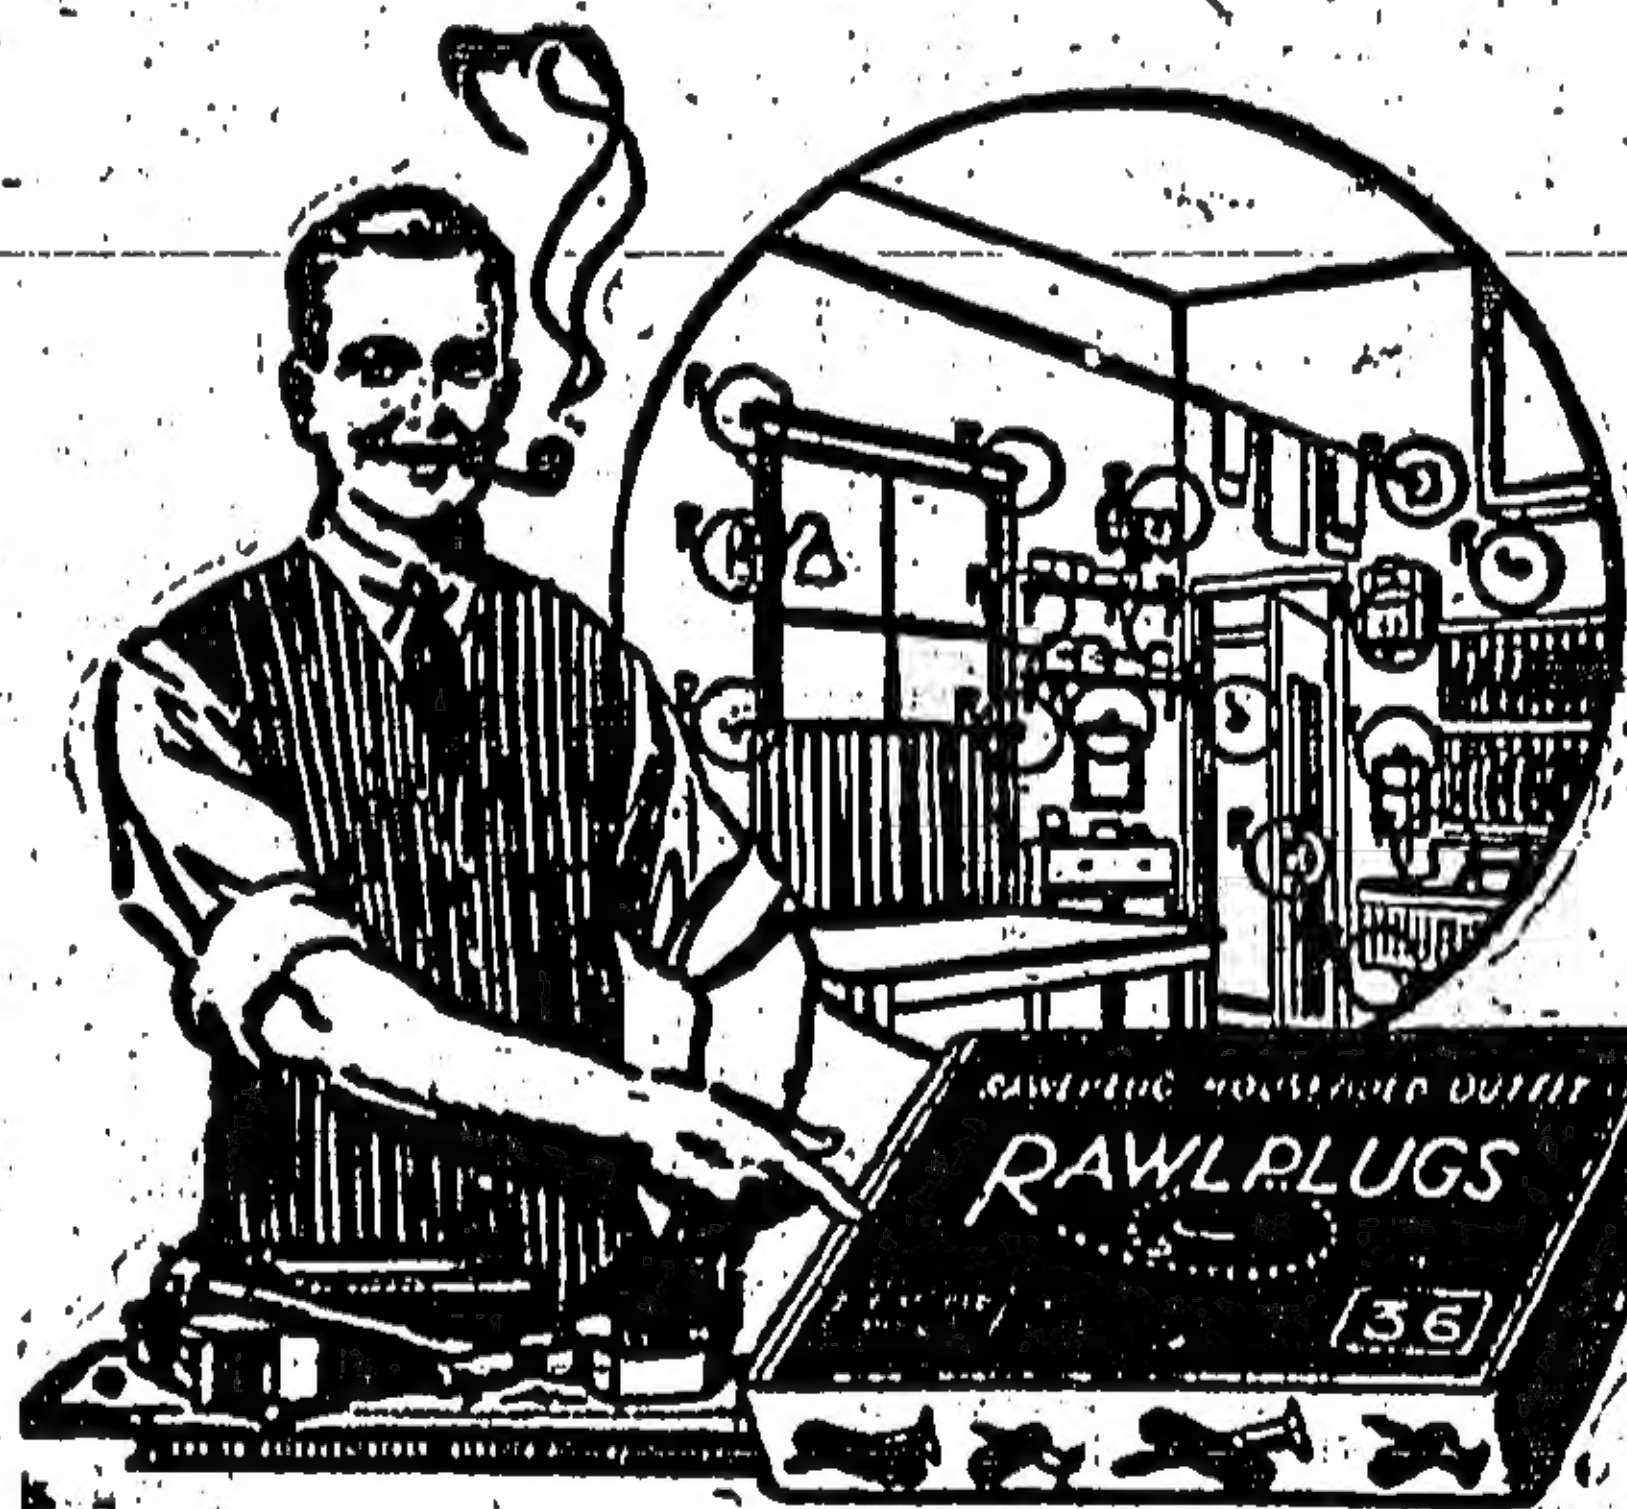

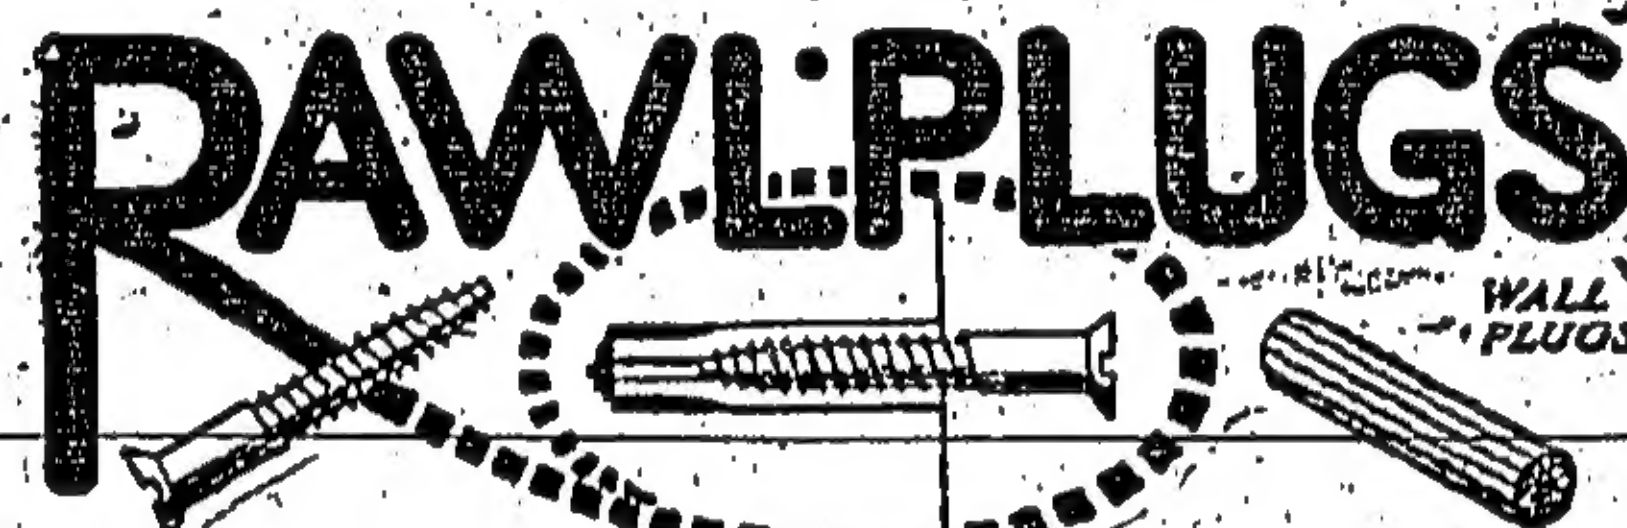

Nothing can correct this insidious condition quite as easily and naturally as Castoria. It tastes so good children beg for it. And it swiftly purges the little system of poisons. It settles the stomach, improves digestion and restores nerve poise. Then Nature does the rest as only Nature can. Appetite for food quickly returns. Health is restored to normal. And as a result the child gains weight fast and becomes sturdy and strong.

Now take care of your child this safe, drugless way. Get a bottle of Castoria and try it. Results will delight you.

Soviet Cinema Chiefs
to Visit London

WIDER MARKET

One of the main purposes of the Soviet Commission, headed by the chief of the Cinema Council of the U.S.S.R., Choumlatsky, on its visit to London, is to create a wider market in Western Europe for Russian films.

Previous efforts made in Paris in that direction were rather disappointing, the screening of Russian pictures at one cinema having led to a loss of about £27,000, despite the fact that the films exhibited were supposed to be "super productions."

The modern Soviet product, although having ceased to be a mere propaganda medium, is still lacking in appeal. This, however, is not caused by the lack of skill on the part of the technicians, but by the lack of suitable equipment and material (says the Kine Weekly).

The domestic raw stock factories, optical plants, and photo-chemical works erected in 1930-1933, are unable to cope with the demand, not only of the cinema theatres, which are constantly increasing in numbers, but also of the studios. An example of this is demonstrated by the fact that the entire number of film cameras at present available in Russia does not exceed 230, many of which are worn-out and antiquated.

Of equal importance are the difficulties caused by the unsatisfactory state of the electrical equipment.

Up till now, the quality of the raw stock manufactured in Russia has been very disappointing, especially in regard to its sensitiveness to light. This is caused by the bad quality of the chemicals available as well as the insufficient equipment of the plant.

The same must be said about the laboratories, the equipment of which is worn out to such an extent that it is hardly able to deal with the increasing output of the raw stock factories.

The laboratories are in special need of automatic developing and printing machines. A small number were imported from foreign countries, but the first home-made units, numbering four or five, which are to be delivered in the current year, are about one-quarter of what is really needed.

DIVORCE NOT WANTED

John Barrymore has assumed a "passive stand" in the divorce proceedings begun by his wife, Dolores Costello, according to his lawyer in Los Angeles, Mr. William H. Nebbett.

Announcing that he had advised his client not to return to Los Angeles to contest the divorce suit (says Reuter), Mr. Nebbett said that Barrymore "does not want a divorce."

"He is still fond of Mrs. Barrymore and would like to stay married to her," the lawyer declared. "He expects to support her two children in the future, as he has done in the past."

Mr. Barrymore described reports about a romance between him and Miss Elaine Barrie, the young New York college student, aboard his yacht Infanta at Havana, as "a lot of bunk."

He said that Miss Barrie had great talents for the radio field, and would appear with him in broadcast programmes. They were preparing a number of skits aboard the yacht, he added.

BANKES NOT A SHAREHOLDER

REPLY TO CHARGES BY COMMUNIST

Sir John Eldon Bankes, chairman of a Royal Commission on the Private Manufacture of and Trading in Arms, recently denied that he held shares in Imperial Chemical Industries following the uttering of certain charges.

Sir John referred to a statement made by Mr. Harry Pollitt, who had given evidence on behalf of the Communist party of Great Britain.

Sir John said that it had been stated by Mr. Pollitt that his (Sir John's) name appeared on the register of Imperial Chemical Industries as the holder of a substantial number of shares in that company.

"Had it not been that I was a member of this Commission I should not have taken any notice of the statement," said Sir John, "but I recognise how important it is that a member of this Commission should be free from any appearance of bias."

He therefore wished to state that, though certain United Alkali shares, recently converted into Imperial Chemical Industries shares, stood in his name as trustee of the estate of a relative, that trust expired last year. All the shares passed out of his name months before he was invited to become a member of the Commission.

HOW TO BECOME A CENTENARIAN

HEREDITY AN IMPORTANT ELEMENT

FRANCE'S CASES
REVIEWED

Paris, June 26.

If you want to live to be a hundred, get centenarians for parents.

Heredity is one of the most important elements in longevity, according to an investigation of the cases of 66 persons in France who have reached the age of 100 years.

Mme. Lanolx, of Deni-Lume, 103, lost her father at the age of 33, it is true, but he was carried away by pneumonia. His father and mother died at 82 and 72 respectively and Mme. Lanolx's mother lived to 82. She has children living aged 78, 67, and 65.

The father of Mme. Verite, 100, died at 80, her aunt at 82.

The mothers or fathers of twelve other centenarians died at the ages of 98, 99, 86, 95, 90, 94, 95, 97, 85 and 80.

Heredity naturally continues to operate, and most of the centenarians have children who show no signs of decay at well past the scriptural three score years and ten. Only two of the centenarians, incidentally, both unmarried women, are without children.

Mme. Montreuil, 100, treats her first-born still as a child, in spite of his 81 years. She has twelve others, the youngest, 60. Mme. Bourgade, now a few months short of 102, has four sons of 81, 72, 70 and 65. Mme. Bertin, 100, has only one daughter, but she has six grand-children, six great grand-children, and two great great grand-children.

LESS WEIGHT AND HEIGHT

Although these centenarians and their children remain of sturdy appearance in their seventies, eighties and nineties, they are not as a rule above medium stature. Of the 56 women centenarians, only six had ever weighed above 110 pounds at any time during their lives. Mme. Gentilhouse, who contradicted the usual rule that weight drops between 60 and 80 years, by weighing more at 101½ than at the time of her marriage, weighed only 81½ and 74½ pounds on those two occasions.

Height naturally corresponded to weight, with only eight of the 56 centenarians, both men and women, reaching five feet three. In this connection it may be noted that General Tom Thumb lived to 60, and that a woman dwarf of three feet nine lived to 103.

One of France's centenarians M. Dufour of Seriat, was born prematurely two months too soon, and wasn't expected to live.

Generally speaking, the centenarians had rarely called in doctors, but whether their good health was the cause or result of this fact was not specified. Three of them had undergone operations in the course of their lives, and three of them had broken limbs.

ANGLO-IRISH PEACE NEARER. EXCHANGING CATTLE FOR BRITISH COAL

O'Connell street, Dublin.

Entrance to government buildings.

Above are shown views of Dublin, capital of the Irish Free State, and scenes of many bloody riots during Anglo-Irish disturbances.

By THOMAS C. WATSON
(Central Press Canadian Correspondent)

London.—Eamon De Valera's expressed hope that he looks forward to the cordial friendship between the English and Irish peoples has stirred the hopes of the million-odd Irish residents in Great Britain.

Whether it will cause peace negotiations to be opened between the two countries remains to be seen. J. H. Thomas, dominion secretary and British minister, responsible, has often said that the "door is still open," with De Valera now making a similar statement, another Anglo-Irish peace conference ought to eventuate during 1935.

De Valera's goodwill offer to England was made in the course of a letter written to Captain Popkess, chief constable of Nottingham, who served with the army of Ireland during the troubles, and who had sent to him the last letter written by one of the Sinn Féiners executed for their share in the 1916 rising.

In his letter to De Valera at the New Year season, Captain Popkess stated:

"During the post-war troubled times in Ireland I was there with my regiment."

"Probably the most repugnant duty of the soldier is the carrying out of raids upon civilised households. During one of these raids I came by the last letter of a patriot written before his execution."

"To-day, when going through an old box I discovered it. This is the son of peace and goodwill, Mr. President, and I return Heuston's letter in that spirit for disposal as you may see fit."

"May I also hope that this action may help to promote a better feeling between races who, though secretly, admiring each other, stood each other for so long."

The chief constable received the following reply from De Valera:

"Dear Sir, I have received your letter and enclosure for which I am very grateful. I, too, look forward to the establishment of relations of cordial friendship between our two peoples; and I am glad to have evidence that there are Englishmen of the same mind. I shall endeavour to trace Mr. Walsh (mentioned in the letter) to which Heuston's letter was addressed, and restore the precious document to him."

NEW TRADE AGREEMENT

Meanwhile, a gentleman's agreement has been arrived at between the Irish Free State and the British government, whereby the Free State will take a large quantity of British coal in exchange for equivalent imports of Irish cattle into Britain.

It is believed that this agreement will be an important step towards the restoration of normal economic and political relations.

The effect of the agreement will be that over a million tons more of British coal will enter the Irish Free State in return for an importation of 150,000 of cattle over the present quota limits.

A further outcome of the agreement will be the cessation of Irish imports of coal from Germany, and Poland.

It is understood that the exchange of coal for cattle will be outside the duties imposed on Irish Free State produce in connection with the Land Annuities dispute, and there will be similar arrangements with regard to duties on coal entering Ireland.

British exports of coal to the Free State were formerly about two and a half million tons annually, but the present exports are half that amount.

"FAILED IN TIME OF NEED"

EX-MINISTER ATTACKS

EXPERIENCES WAR-TIME

"I know of no case in our history where a great industry has been so disastrous a failure in the time of need."

Dr. Christopher Addison, Minister of Munitions from December 1916 to July 1917, made this statement when speaking of the response of the arms industry to the emergency of 1914.

He was putting forward a strong plea before the Royal Commission on the Private Manufacture of and Trading in Arms, at Westminster, for the centralisation of the industry.

"Existing arrangements," said Dr. Addison, "proved quite inadequate to meet the demands of the first ten months of the war. There was a most alarming deficiency of high explosive shells, and the troops in France had to be rationed to scanty and almost inadequate allowances."

"It cannot be denied that nine months after the late war had begun, and when every effort had been made to make the system of reliance on private manufacture meet the nation's need, the system had proved to be a tragic and perilous failure."

"In the case of the chief munitions firms, deliveries were so terribly in arrears that the promises for delivery were a source of danger."

TERRIBLE RISK

Dr. Addison submitted that such difficulties "indicate the need for national control on a similar scale in any emergency."

"The difficulties and disputes arising out of the dilution of labour during the war were so notorious that I confine myself to pointing out that the questions of principle, sentiment, and interest involved could not conceivably have been faced, let alone settled, by any authority other than the Government of the country. If those questions had been left for settlement by private employers, with or without support from the Government, the resulting friction and disturbances would not merely have hindered the output of munitions but would have made it quite impossible to carry on the war at all."

The experience of the late war, said Dr. Addison, pointed to the necessity, from the point of view of national defence, of the establishment of a State Department responsible for the manufacture and assembly of all articles manufactured only for purposes of war.

ANOTHER CONSIDERATION

"This conclusion," he added "is entirely apart from the grave consideration of national policy relating to the undesirability of manufactures of this kind being in private hands for the purpose of gain."

Dr. Addison emphasised the difficulties caused early in the war by the complete lack of information as to the respective costs of armaments.

By the original practice of placing contracts on a basis of tender, the transactions were limited to a relatively small group of manufacturers, with whom there necessarily came to be established a close

PAINLESS CHILD-BIRTH

REMARKABLE NEW ANAESTHETIC

Atlantic City.

The successful use of a new analesthetic to render child-birth painless has been reported to the American Medical Association here by Dr. Ralph T. Knight, assistant Professor of Surgery at the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Knight is also Chief of Staff in Anesthesia at the Minneapolis General Hospital.

The new anaesthesia is known as Cyclopropane. It is a hydrocarbon gas, each molecule consisting of three atoms of carbon and six of hydrogen. It has a faint, sweet odor.

Dr. Knight revealed that it had been used the past eighteen months at both Minneapolis General Hospital and the University Hospital for General Surgery. It has only recently been tried in child-birth.

He said he was giving to patients mixed with oxygen, about 10 per cent. of the anaesthetic to 90 per cent. oxygen. Two inhalations, he said, at the onset of each labour pain, are sufficient to dispel the pain without retarding the labour. Sometimes, he said, one inhalation was enough.

As the time for the delivery came, he said, the concentration was increased, the mother then being put completely under.

working relationship, and there seemed to have arisen a sort of understanding as to the prices to be paid for different supplies. As far as he ascertained, there was no effective competition between these firms as to price.

Dr. Addison maintained that only by a system of centralisation "would it be possible to mobilise and secure the rapid utilisation of appropriate manufacturing capacities to provide expansion in the case of war." This central department would be responsible in peace time for the supply and manufacture in State-owned factories of all productions for war use only. It would also be prepared with the necessary control orders in respect of a number of classified private establishments.

Asked about the difficulties of international trading in arms, Dr. Addison said:—"I suggest that in any case it would be much easier to deal with the international questions that are at stake if the control of the manufacture were, in the first instance, in the State's hands, and you were not embarrassed by the hundreds of cross-currents of interest you would have to pluck at if you were dealing with it under the present conditions. It is practically impossible to deal fairly with the restriction of sale to outside States under the existing scheme."

Spider's Venom Medicine For Heart Ailment

HUMAN BEINGS OFFER FOR EXPERIMENT

SUBMIT TO POISONING

New York.

So-called "human guinea-pigs" for scientific experimentation are being recruited on a large scale at a New York medical college. 72 men and women students have submitted themselves to various poisons.

The experiments were disclosed to 500 physicians meeting here who also heard that venom of the deadly black spider has been proved a heart treatment. A new drug, it was revealed, so slows down bodily process that a man treated with it needs to shave only once a week. The new drug, made of desiccated thyroid, is for chronic heart disease.

The "human guinea pigs," at New York Homeopathic Medical College, have been given sulphur and aluminum poisons and next will be subjected to lead poisoning. Dr. Linn J. Boyd, college pharmacologist, described the tests to members of the American Institute of Homeopathy but was unwilling to reveal results. He urged wider use of such "human volunteers in the service of humanity."

"The time is coming when no drug will be allowed general use before it has had a thorough test on a selected group of human beings," Dr. Boyd said. He added that animals were less satisfactory.

Dr. Milton J. Rabeck's findings desiccated thyroid were considered extremely important. Chronic heart disease sufferers treated with the drug were found to need only 70 per cent. of the usual amount of oxygen. Every bodily function, even to the growth of hair, slowed down. The result was less strain on the heart.

The black widow spider's venom, deadly poison, was first suggested as a heart treatment 10 years ago, but only recently, he disclosed, have hundreds of specialists begun giving it, greatly diluted in a salt solution, to victims of angina pectoris.

Dr. Boyd gets supply of venom, enough for thousands of treatments every six months from a friend in Brazil whose hobby is raising deadly snakes, spiders, and scorpions. The supply is a fraction of an ounce.—United Press.

DEATH OF MR. A. M. PRESTON

SHANGHAI LAWYER FORMER- LY OF HONGKONG

Following a prolonged illness, the death occurred last Thursday, at Shanghai, of Mr. Arthur Montague Preston, a partner in the legal firm of Messrs. Ellis and Hays, at his home, 222 Hungjao Road, House No. 41. He was 47 years of age.

Born on April 16, 1888, in Chester, Mr. Preston was the son of Mr. Arthur Collingwood Preston. His family is Irish and connected with that of Viscount Gormanston. He was educated at Charterhouse and came out East in 1914, when he joined the legal firm of Messrs. Johnson, Stokes, & Master, in Hongkong.

When the War broke out, Mr. Preston was not permitted, as he wished, to join up, but was held in Hongkong on the Reserve. Finally, however, in 1918, he reached France and joined the 1st Bn. of the Cheshire, in a Territorial unit of which he held a commission before the War. After the Armistice, he was with the army of occupation in Cologne, where he was one of the Court-martial officers, and it was there that he first met the late Mr. Tycho Wing.

In 1912, he came back to China. This time, Shanghai was his headquarters and he joined the firm of Ellis & Hays. Subsequently, he became a partner in the firm and for a time was again associated with the late Mr. Tycho Wing. His recent partner has been Mr. H. A. Recks.

Mr. Preston had a ready Irish wit. House-boating was his great relaxation over week-ends, and he was a frequent visitor to Henli. He was also a very keen dry-fly fisherman and a past master at that art.

He is survived by his wife and two brothers; both the latter are in Surrey. The remains were cremated on Saturday.

JAPAN AND CHINA

Sir Samuel Hoare's declaration in the House of Commons a few days ago that Far Eastern stability largely depends on the establishment of good relations between China and Japan serves to bring to mind one of the outstanding factors preventing the attainment of accord. We refer to the Japanese demands, repeatedly made of late, that the anti-Japanese tendencies prevailing in China must be eliminated. The extent to which these tendencies have developed may be a matter of opinion, but, however deeply seated they may be, there can be little question that they are an effect of a cause which must be removed before any real rapprochement can be expected. On this point, the latest issue of The People's Tribune, a journal which ably champions China's viewpoint on major questions of the day, has some pertinent remarks to make. "We would heartily welcome the disappearance of anti-Japanese sentiment in this country," it remarks, "and would rejoice to see Japan recognised by the Chinese people as a friendly neighbour, with sympathetic understanding of our difficulties and a genuine desire to alleviate our sufferings and assist our progress—but we see no hope of such a happy state of affairs coming about until there is a great change not only in China's outlook, but in that of Japan, as so plainly expressed by her policy since 1931. The spectacle of armed men of an alien race watching vigilantly for what they consider to be hostile 'tendencies' is not calculated to promote the friendship they profess to be anxious to establish, nor do memories of 1931-32 provide quite the right kind of atmosphere for tendencies otherwise than hostile to develop." This brings the main source of trouble between the two countries down to realities. In view of past encroachments on her territorial integrity, China's resentment against Japan's penetration is quite understandable, and the situation is certainly not helped by constant threats of force. Friendship cannot be built up on such a basis. If Japan considers that she has a grievance against China, it is the essence of statesmanship to endeavour to discover the underlying causes and seek their removal. There are indications at the moment that

NOTES OF THE DAY

NEW MAN—NEW HOPE

The change in the British Cabinet is more than a tweedledum-tweedle affair. There is a new occupant of the Foreign Office, Sir Samuel Hoare. Of his measure in foreign affairs none can speak with certainty. But a new broom always sweeps clean, and there can be no doubt that on this account alone the shift in of considerable significance in Anglo-American relations, says an American commentator. Under the old regime several misunderstandings had arisen. They all revolved around the head of Sir John Simon for his handling of the Manchurian affair. Several times the American State Department found itself mistaken when a common line of action had seemingly been laid down. Whatever the merits or demerits of the misunderstanding, it cut deep, and none knows better than the observer on the American side of the Atlantic how wise Mr. Baldwin has been in the manner of his office sweeping.

ANGLO-AMERICANISM

In this connection Sir Samuel takes up his portfolio at a time when Mr. Baldwin has reaffirmed his Anglo-Americanism. His friendly reference to the United States was promptly reciprocated in Washington. For the moment collaboration is in the realm of gesture. America awaits a settlement of European troubles in the hope that the nations will once again be able to sit around a disarmament table. America will hardly be much interested until that hope returns. As for an American place in any collective security system, that at present is not practical politics, but the United States may soon be ready with a negative, if not a positive, contribution. Six months ago Mr. Baldwin said that he would never consent to the use of the British Navy as a League policeman till he knew what America would do. The risk was too great. What he meant was that he did not wish to see any entanglement with an America engaged in asserting its neutral rights to trade in wartime. America, however, is showing every disposition to withdraw such insistence.

THE PROOF OF GUILT

Until a few days ago it was possible to maintain that there were three classes of exceptions to the fundamental of English justice that a man is to be presumed innocent until he is proved guilty. Now there are only two such exceptions. This is the immense constitutional significance of the recent decision of the House of Lords, which, sitting as the supreme court of the realm, has quashed a verdict of wilful murder. In an English law court it is not any part of the accused's task to prove himself innocent of the accusation brought against him; his innocence is assumed until the prosecution proves his guilt. To this role there are two kinds of exception. One is in respect of certain classes of statutory offences and the other is where the defence sets up a plea of onus of proof lies with the defence. The third exception, upheld early in 1935, can be upheld no longer. It is established that, in cases of homicide as in most others, innocence is presumed, until guilt is proved. This is typical of the British in matters of law. British justice is lenient toward the prisoner. It would rather than nine guilty people escaped than that one innocent man were punished. Today, in the United States there is a feeling that this attitude may tend to encourage wrong-doing. And on the American Continent, where the vastness of the area in which criminals may operate and hide, and where frontier traditions, a mixed population and antiquated laws make problems which British law enforcers do not have, such doubts may have some basis. In Great Britain, however, the exact opposite is the case. Since every prisoner is assured of a fair trial in a British court, there is at any rate none of that false romance about lawbreakers which is one obstacle to administration of justice in the United States.

China's leaders are not by any means indisposed to come to a better understanding with Japan. But no settlement is possible with one side making all the concessions. Japan has a first-class opportunity of showing to the world that she really aims at that peaceful and lasting adjustment of Far Eastern friction which her statesmen have repeatedly professed in recent times. The whole world will await her reaction to the appeals being made from many quarters that she should base her China policy on goodwill and concord.

AUSTRIAN REPUBLIC
DEMOLISHED?

BY FRANCIS CUNTER

Vienna. The Austrian Government has only itself to blame. It must be clearly kept in mind that the Social-Democratic Party always placed the emphasis on the "Democratic," not on the "Social" or "Socialist." It believed in democracy, in free speech, in free assembly. It lived for that belief, it died for that belief.

In 1918, for a brief period, the Social-Democratic Party had control of the country. It could have declared a dictatorship of the proletariat. It could have dissolved the Christian-Social Party. It could have dissolved all other parties. Even as late as 1933, when free elections gave it 60 per cent of the country, it could, by a snap of the fingers, have wiped out the Heimwehr and put Prince von Starhemberg in a concentration camp.

But it did none of these things—because they were not democratic. Well, those days are over.

Nowadays, even Otto Bauer, for years the conservative leader of the Social-Democratic Party and its bulwark against the inroads of Communism; nowadays even old Dr. Bauer thunders in his article in the illegal Arbeiter Zeitung: "The days of February, 1934, have taught us an impressive lesson. At that time we buried not only our dead, but also our errors and illusions. A whole epoch in the history of the Austrian working-class movement came to an end. The Austrian workers believed that Socialism could be realised by democracy, in peace. The Fascists have shot democracy to pieces. They have taught the Austrian workers that there is no other choice: either the dictatorship of Fascism, or the dictatorship of the proletariat."

Whether or not one agrees that there actually is no other choice, whether or not one would find the one dictatorship as odious as the other, the fact remains that it is the Austrian Government that has driven the Social-Democratic Party to this revolutionary slogan. It has become the watchword of the 60 per cent of Vienna and the 40 per cent of the country that were once absolutely constitutional and democratic.

Under the eyes of the secret service men, spies, stool-pigeons, police, gendarmes, Heimwehr, Ostmark Storm Troops, priests, and the Army, the underground work of the new revolutionary organisations goes on. Everything that a dictatorship can do to stop it, from hanging to concentration camps, is done. But the underground work goes on. Every week, 300,000 copies of the Arbeiter Zeitung, brilliant and bitterly composed in exile by Bauer, one of the great pamphleteers of our time, slip like fog over the border. They pass from hand to hand like a handshake, and reach half a million readers.

Each of the eight revolutionary organisations listed above has its own party organ, printed, mimeographed, typed, set between paper covers marked Cook-book or Kriminal-Roman. When the police unearth one printing-press the work is done on another.

The old Social-Democratic Party machine has been re-demolished. It has been replaced by a new machine, a new machine, a new machine. It is a machine that is built for the future, a machine that is built for the future, a machine that is built for the future.

The Very Idea!

STABILISATION

Kelly Tries His Hand At High Finance

(By Eddie Kelly, Silver Bloc-head) Mr. Edward Kelly, the well-known financial wizard, has decided to issue a clarion call or two to the Hongkong public to rally round and help him solve the silver problem.

The fact that Hongkong's currency is in a deplorable state has been brought to his attention lately by two incidents. The first concerns a forged $100 he has been trying to dispose of. The second incident—but perhaps you'd better hear what Mr. Kelly has to say himself.

SPEAKING from the depths of experience we think that the more we think of Hongkong's silver problem the less we should think about it.

We refer, of course, to our chopped dollar.

What this Colony needs is an expert to guard its currency. Like us, for instance.

First thing we'd do would be to visit all the shops that chop dollars. We'd close up their chopras. This would teach them not to metal with our silver coins.

Silver is obtained in veins and seams, by miners who labour in vein. How vein it seams.

A lot of these financial experts who come to Hongkong reckon we should tie the dollar to sterling. Tying it, however, would be a knotty problem.

If we were appointed financial expert we would stabilise the dollar. If the Hong Kong Valley weren't big enough we'd put the remainder in our room at the Y.M.C.A.

Other lands have tried different methods. For instance the United States tried to cross silver with the double eagle. When the eagle laid its egg the yolk was bad. Hence the term "high" finance.

When the U.S. Treasury officials saw the yolk was on them they started a silver campaign which has been a pain to every one since.

In order to overcome this American plan what we've got to have is a Five Year Silver Plan of our own.

Let us all lie down and put our shoulder to the wheel and pull. We all know that the only people making a dollar or two in these hard days are the counterfeiters. Let us, then, make our own money. Prosperity is just around the corner.

Mass production! If you have a reserve fund of $2.50 now to offset your chits amounting to $125, make your reserve fund $10. Your chits can then amount to $500.

Do something. Remember you are a cog in a great world-wide financial machine, and by pulling together we will turn the corner which leads to a brighter tomorrow, always keeping in mind that there is no cloud without a silver lining, and it is always darkest before the dawn.

We could go on like this for hours and hours (hours is a tiger beer), but the Editor wants us to get going with our stabilisation scheme.

The whole question of stabilisation hinges on the incidence of gold-silver exchange risks between Hongkong on the one hand and other silver currency centres. Actually, the only things necessary to take into consideration are the gold standard, price of silver, moratoriums, pegging the exchange, international currency stabilisation, supply and demand, exports and imports, government and private debts, interest on private investments, the demonetisation of silver and a few other odds and ends.

It will be plainly seen that with material like that any man who couldn't evolve a system which would defy all human comprehension except his own must be a bit dull.

Now, you ask us, what is this system of stabilisation we recommend?

Well, you know that the most important matter to be considered in determining the desirability or otherwise of changing Hongkong currency to a fixed standard, pegged to either sterling or gold, is the effect which such a change would have on the trade and financial business of the Colony.

"Yes."

First of all, then, we must consider certain fundamental defects in our currency system. The chief one is that while there is an automatic contraction of the volume of the currency as soon as its exchange value drops to the lower bullion point, there is no satisfactory automatic method of expansion.

"It seems you can't depend on anything. I was counting on that chain letter money to help out on my vacation."

HANKOW FACES DISASTER

DYKES CRUMBLE UNDER STRAIN

Hankow, July 13. The water mark at Hankow has reached the 51.4 mark. A flood is anticipated at any time.—Reuter.

Fight for Life

Hankow, July 14. A serious slip occurred in the Changkung dyke this morning, the bank dropping four to five feet over a stretch of 100 yards. It is believed, however, that the army of coolies employed by the Conservancy authorities can cope with the situation.

General Chang Hsueh-lung, interviewed by Reuter, was of opinion that if the dykes can hold out for the next forty-eight hours, Hankow should be safe from the flood, but if an inundation occurred he believed that the city would be finished commercially, as none would have the heart to begin again.

The water mark at 4.30 p.m. today was 51.35 feet, and practically unchanged since yesterday afternoon.

It was agreed by representatives of the various national interests in the city to raise the Bund wall of all the Concessions to the 54 foot level.

Emergency Measures

An arrangement has been made whereby, in the event of a collapse of the main dyke, gangs and police whistles will be sounded.

A rescue corps has been formed composed of students, scouts and other volunteers.

At Wuchang, where the level is higher than at Hankow, they have now started the pre-arranged emergency measures.

Han River Tragedy

Mr. Ho Chen-chun, the Pacification Commissioner, has made an aerial inspection of the cities of the Han Valley and reports serious flooding at Tienmen, which is situated on a tributary of the Han River. From his plane he saw only the house-tops of the town, with the people clinging to the roofs and the trees.

The Han River police have picked up 200 bodies from the water.

On receipt of this report General Chang Hsueh-lung also made a survey of the situation from the air.—Reuter.

Changkung Dyke Saved

Nanking, July 14.

The Changkung Dyke, in Hupeh, on the Yangtze River almost gave way yesterday, but thanks to the strenuous efforts of the responsible officials and the local inhabitants the breach was quickly repaired according to a report from Kukiang.

Strengthening of the dykes along the river is being carried on by the local authorities. The Yangtze River Conservancy Commission is expected to shortly despatch several river conservancy experts to Kiangsi to help in the dyke repair flood prevention work.

The Commission has been busily engaged during the past few days coping with the situation in the Yangtze River and devising emergency means to improve immediate conditions.—Central News Agency.

Hunan's Leaking Dykes

Changsha, July 14.

The water level of the Tungting Lake at Nanchang and Yunkiang is over that of 1931, by about 2 ft., according to a report which reached here from General Ho Chien, Chairman of the Hunan Provincial Government.

Over 600 breaches have occurred in the dykes round the lake and along the Yangtze River, continues the report; while no detailed statistics are available of the damages done by the flood it is generally believed that these have amounted to over millions of dollars.

General Ho has already sent a telegram to the Yangtze River Conservancy Commission asking for emergency relief funds.—Central News Agency.

$10,000 Donation

Shanghai, July 13.

Mr. Av Boon-haw, the millionaire philanthropist, and his brother have contributed a joint donation of $10,000 to the flood relief in China.

The money has been sent to the Mayor, Mr. Wu Te-chen.

Shensi's Appeal

Slap, July 14.

A circular telegram signed by Mr. Shih Lich-chi, Chairman of the Shensi Government and General Yang Fu-chen, Commander-in-Chief of the Provincial Defence Force has been sent to Mr. Wang Ching-wel, Mr. Hsu Shi-ying, Chairman of the Yangtze Commission and various bodies of Nanking and Shanghai for funds for relief in the flooded districts in the Province (Shensi).

In the telegram it is stated that the valley of the Wei River

TYPHOON THREAT

FIRST SIGNAL OF THE SUMMER

The No. 1 typhoon signal was hoisted at 9.50 a.m. yesterday, this being the first warning of the kind this year.

The typhoon was reported east of the Philippines, moving west-north-west, on Friday; and it crossed northern Luzon on Saturday afternoon, entering the China Sea the same night. At 10 a.m. yesterday, Manila reported the typhoon in Long, 116 E, Lat 18 N, moving West.

At 3.40 p.m. Manila reported the typhoon south-south-east of Hong Kong, in Long, 115 E, and Lat. 18 N, still moving West. This indicated that it would pass well to the south of the Colony, threatening Hainan.

At 9.30 p.m. No. 1 typhoon signal was lowered, all possibility of the storm striking the Colony being at an end.

Challenge Round against the Davis Cup holders, Great Britain's powerful combination.

Geneva, July 14.

If a meeting of the League of Nations Council is called on July 25, it is learned here that the Italian Government will in all probability send representatives.

The authorities in Rome are adopting a less hostile attitude towards the League of Nations feeling that Great Britain is unlikely to insist that League action be taken against Italy in the event of a war with Abyssinia.

Italy considers she has a very strong case to put before the League and will probably move that Abyssinia should be asked to relinquish League membership.—Reuter Special.

DOLLAR AGAIN DECLINES

MARKET UNDERTONE STEADY

The Hongkong dollar declined a farthing this morning, the official rate being 2s. 1½d. The business rates were 2s. 1½d. sellers and 2s. 1½d. buyers. Sellers came into the market quite freely, and the undertone is steady.

In London, silver prices declined 13/16ths on Saturday, the fall being due to India and China speculative selling and buyers holding off. Offerings, however, were not large, and the market closed steady.

In New York, silver was down one cent.

EXAGGERATED REPORTS

ONLY SIX DEAD IN SHIPWRECK

Shanghai, July 15.

Survivors of the Chinese steamer Ting Hai, which capsized on July 12 off the Chekiang coast, state that only six persons were drowned to their knowledge.

Early reports said that 100 of the 500 on board the vessel perished.—Reuter.

and the districts of Lonn, Shangnan, Shanyang, and Chen-an are the most affected in the Province.

Rain has ceased since Friday morning but owing to the melting glaciers at its source the Yellow River and other rivers in the Province cannot be expected to fall at once.

Communication on the whole line of the Lungki Railway is still interrupted. Telegrams from here must first go to Chengchow and then to places outside the provincial border owing to the breaking down of telegraphic wires.—Wah Kiu Yat Po.

Protecting the Grand Canal

Tainan, July 14.

In order to prevent the overflowing of the Yellow River into the Grand Canal the authorities have ordered three districts governments, Hoelien, Chianhsiang and Wanchan, in Western Shantung and Yutai district along the canal to build embankments.

The projected dykes are to be 10 metres high and 30 metres wide. Able-bodied men in the surrounding districts are required to help to construct the embankments.

Since the rain has ceased the water level of the Lo River, in Honan, has fallen considerably according to information from the Affairs Bureau.—Central News Agency.

DREYFUS DEAD FRENCH SCANDAL RECALLED

Paris, July 14.

Alfred Dreyfus, the innocent victim of the biggest French political scandal of the last century, is dead.

Mattre Labori, the lawyer who acted as his counsel at the trial of his own life; Emile Zola, the novelist who went to prison for his part in the defence; Col. Picquart, who risked his career for taking the part of the accused officer; and Jaurès, the great socialist orator who stirred the Chamber of Deputies and the country by impassioned appeals, are long since dead.

Dreyfus for 12 years stirred French passions to depths such as the country had not known since the revolution. The "affaire Dreyfus" dominated every aspect of public life. It caused governments to topple and made France almost a nullity in the political history of Europe. Political parties were split, families were divided. Several persons lost their lives in the almost daily clashes between the factions into which the nation was divided.

Previous to his arrest as an alleged traitor, Captain Alfred Dreyfus was merely an obscure staff officer, disliked in the army on account of the fact that he was a Jew.

Son of Alsation Jew

Alfred Dreyfus, the innocent victim of the biggest French political scandal of last century, was born at Mulhouse, Alsace, in 1859. His father was a wealthy Jewish industrialist, who, after Alsace became German in 1871, left it for Paris. Alfred instead of going into his father's lucrative business joined the army and after passing through the military colleges was ninth in the final examination. He became an artillery officer in 1882 and was promoted captain in 1889. In 1893 he became a member of the general staff under General Boisdeffre. It was at that time strongly Catholic and anti-republican.

In September 1894, the Secret Service secured evidence that documents had been handed by a spy to the German military attaché Schwarzkoppen. General Mercier, the War Minister, ordered an inquiry, but without result. The staff then declared that the Jew, Dreyfus, must be the traitor. One of his colleagues, De Pailly de Clam, a relative of Mercier, said the documents were in Dreyfus's hand and, though experts denied this, Dreyfus was subjected to a severe cross-examination after which Pailly de Clam had him arrested because he had trembled, and the secret investigation went on. Dreyfus was not allowed to see anyone or to have an advocate. An attempt was also made to get his wife to incriminate him.

Public Sensation

The case first became public in November that year and the result was a frantic anti-Semitic and Royalist agitation. Mercier was declared to be trying to shield Dreyfus and, although he was told that the evidence would not hold water, and was assured by the German Ambassador that the embassy had had nothing to do with Dreyfus, the latter was arraigned before a secret court martial. The case was on the point of collapse when a document was put in stating that a certain "D" had sold secret papers to a foreign Power. Dreyfus was promptly found to be "D" and therefore guilty. On January 5, 1895, he was publicly degraded and to an angry mob which tried to lynch him he said: "I am innocent. Live la France."

He was sent to Devil's Island, French Guiana, and his wife received only garbled copies of his letters. Meanwhile his brother Mathieu was organising an agitation to have the case reconsidered and Picquart, who knew Dreyfus, had become head of the Secret Service. There fell into his hands a note from Schwarzkoppen to Major Esterhazy, an Austrian in the French army, appointing a meeting. Picquart looked into the Austrian's dossier and found that he had a bad record. He also noticed a strong resemblance between his writing and that in the incriminating documents. Picquart told his chief Boisdeffre, who was a rabid anti-Semite, with the result that Picquart was sent to Tunis and Henry, one of Dreyfus's enemies, put in his place. This episode came out and caused a great sensation. Billot, who had succeeded Mercier as War Minister, decided on a fresh inquiry, but when Henry produced letters obtained from a Jew named Lehmann said to be definitely incriminating Dreyfus, the Premier Melne told the Chamber that it was a "chose jugée."

Zola Intervenes

Then the "Matin" came out with a facsimile of the original document and Scheurer-Kestner began to look into the case. His view was the same as Picquart's, but he could get nothing done until

NAVAL REVIEW GREATEST ASSEMBLY IN PEACE TIME

Portsmouth, July 13.

Hundreds of thousands of sight-seers and holiday-makers are arriving in Portsmouth for the biggest naval review since the assembly of the Grand and Mediterranean fleets just before the Great War.

During the week-end thousands of these visitors lined the coast from Southsea to Lea, watching through the terrific heat haze that was a feature of to-day's summer weather, the warships mustering in preparation for the event.

Warships of every shape and size have assembled for Tuesday's great review. They total 160.

Early on Tuesday morning His Majesty the King, in the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert, will steam from end to end along the line of war vessels.

The main streets of Portsmouth are a mass of huntings, and the crowds have been awoken by thousands of British Jack tars who have been allowed ashore.

Many motorists, supplied with rugs and provisions, have already arrived, preparing to spend the long week-end in their cars.

Auxiliary merchant fleet vessels will also take part in the Review. These will include the coaster Angularity, the passenger ship Ulster Prince, the Thames pleasure steamers Royal Eagle and Crested Eagle, and the 62,000 ton liner Berengaria. Drifters and trawlers will also be represented.

Aldershot Review

Aldershot, July 13.

At Rushmore arena, where His Majesty the King held his Jubilee Review of 9,000 troops of the Aldershot Command, representing every branch of the army. Their Majesties were accompanied by their four sons. Thousands of people filled the tiers of seats stretched in a great semi-circle around the arena.

The King was received by a royal salute of guns, the massed bands playing the national anthem. He took the salute from a dais in front of the royal pavilion, around which were grouped members of the Colonial and Dominion Offices, with the King's four Indian orderlies.

The King, wearing the khaki service uniform of a Field-Marshal, stood motionless on the dais in except when raising his hand in salute, while miles of troops awaited past him and the crowd was cheering the magnificent spectacle.—Reuter.

Figaro reproduced a letter by Esterhazy in which he abused France. Mathieu charged the Austrian with being the real spy and public opinion which had veered round forced the War Minister to court-martial him. The trial was secret and he was acquitted. The enemies of the truth then asserted that the facts were such that reopening of the case would mean war with Germany.

Zola, the novelist, now intervened decisively. On January 13, 1898, he published his famous "Accuse" in which he branded the general staff as forgers and plotters, and dared the Government to prosecute him, declaring that Esterhazy had been acquitted by order. The Government did so, but could not keep Dreyfus out of the case. Picquart gave evidence that the incriminating letters had been forged by Lehmann at the request of Henry—a statement confirmed by the German and Italian ambassadors. Soon afterwards Lehmann was found hanged and it was suggested that he had been got rid of. Cavalgnae, the anti-Semitic War Minister then in power, was forced to arrest Henry, who confessed that he had had a hand in the forgeries and next day he too was found to have died a violent death. Cavalgnae and Boisdeffre had to resign, but the anti-Semites had Picquart charged with forging the Esterhazy papers.

He was acquitted. Zola's campaign continued and on September 28 the Supreme Court held that Esterhazy was "D." Dreyfus was court-martialed at Rennes in September 1899, found guilty but with extenuating circumstances, and pardoned. It was not till July 12, 1906, that he was finally declared innocent by the Court of Cassation. To secure this retrial he had a long struggle during which he published his defence, "Five Years of My Life," a book which made a profound impression. He was taken back into the army, promoted major and made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honour. But in June, 1908, while accompanying Zola's remains to the Pantheon he was fired at and wounded by an anti-Semite. Dreyfus served during the war and since then has lived quietly in Paris.

ANOTHER DEATH IN T. T. RACE

D. J. PIRIE GOES OFF ROAD

APPALLING MIST PREVAILS

By Kirkstone

Douglas (Isle of Man),

The British motor-cycle Tourist Trophy races over the Manx Snail-fell mountain course claimed another life to-day, D. J. Pirie, the London surveyor, aged 33, going off the road in descending from the mountain and hitting five concrete posts.

The mist was appallingly thick from Ramsey almost to the starting-point at Douglas, nearly 15 miles distance.

After half an hour's racing the riders had to speed blindly, trusting to luck for their lives.

Pirie at the last moment accepted an offer to ride the New Imperial Birmingham machine on which S. Gleave had crashed in practice.

HIS SEVENTH WIN

The Lightweight Trophy went abroad for the first time to-day, and Stanley Woods, the Irish ace, recorded his seventh Tourist Trophy success.

Riding through a thick shroud of grey mist for 100 miles out of 204, Woods, on an Italian Guzzi machine of 250 c.c., led from start to finish, and presented Signor Mussolini with a reward for ten years of Italian motor-cycling effort.

Woods was only six seconds outside the record of the race, made in 1933, in good weather conditions.

Only once since the war have the conditions been so appalling.

WOODS'S ESCAPE

Woods had one marvellous escape from disaster.

He was heading for the wall at Governor's Bridge when he sensed the danger, and literally lifted the machine from the wall and carried on.

O. Tenni, the Italian, riding the second Guzzi, drove brilliantly until the mist killed his chances. He was second in the race with little more than 70 miles to go when he crashed. He was not badly injured.

Another rider who crashed to-day, F. W. S. Clarke, is in hospital with a badly lacerated arm.

REPORTED SEPARATION PROPOSAL

DIFFERENCES OF RELIGION

DENIAL BY THE BRIDE

New York, July 10. Max Baer, said the New York Daily News in a copyrighted story, announced last night he and his bride of 10 days have parted company "because of religious differences."

But the wife of the former world heavyweight champion, the erstwhile Mary Ellen Sullivan, quickly denied there had been a rift.

The News said Baer and his wife would confer with regard to a separation later this week, before he enters a hospital at Baltimore for treatment for his hands. He injured them in the June 13 battle in which he lost his crown to Jimmy Braddock.

The Livermore Adonis, said the Daily News, announced the alleged rift at a party which he attended in company with Mary Kirk Brown, his former fiancée. Mrs. Baer meanwhile was at her home at Long Branch, N. J.

"She wanted to get married again by a Catholic priest but because I was Jewish, I refused," Max was quoted as saying. "I never knew she took religion so seriously."

Mrs. Baer laughed later as she denied she and Max had had any trouble. "There's nothing to it," she said. "I did not feel like going to New York with Max and I suppose someone was taking advantage of me."

Mrs. Baer was the manager of the Hotel Willard restaurant at Washington until the Californian led her to the altar at the national capital on June 2. She said her home was in Rhineclay, N. Y., gave her age as 42 and said she was 22 when they went to New York on the honeymoon.

Max is preparing for a bout here in September with Joe Louis the "black menace" from Detroit who recently made pulp of giant Primo Carnera. Max remarked that Louis "can't do anything" but wondered whether "he can take it."—Associated Press.

EPSOM DOWNS CONTROL

BILL NOW BEING DRAFTED

MAP PREPARED

Epsom, June 18. A bill is to be drafted which, if passed, would "regulate and control" the famous Epsom Downs.

Epsom and Ewell Urban Council this evening decided that the Clerk, with the solicitors of the Epsom Grandstand Association, shall instruct the Council's Parliamentary agents to draft a private Bill which it has been agreed to promote for the regulation and control of Epsom Downs and Walton Downs.

The draft will then be submitted for consideration by the council of the Grandstand Association, and other interested persons.

Alderman Chuter Ede, chairman of the Surrey County Council, and of the Common and Downs sub-Committee of the Urban Council, said the matter was of the greatest importance, not merely to the district, but to the very large public which used Epsom Downs.

If the Bill became an Act it would put an end to outstanding disputes.

An agreed map had been prepared which showed what were to be regarded as enclosures that

Yankees Lose To White Sox At Baseball

BLANKED OUT BY TED LYONS

DOUBLE HEADER SHARED

New York, July 14. The New York Yankees, now being offered a serious challenge by Detroit Tigers for the top position of the American Baseball League, to-day suffered another defeat when playing the Chicago White Sox.

The teams were engaged in a double header which was shared, the Yankees winning the second contest after having been blanked out in the first by Ted Lyons.

The Detroit Tigers, however, were also beaten to-day, the Philadelphia Athletics winning a match that went to ten innings.

A match between Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox had to be abandoned after the scores were tied, the Sunday law preventing the match from going beyond the tenth innings.

In the National League, the New York Giants were beaten by Pittsburgh Pirates by four runs to two.

Results of to-day's matches, as cabled by Reuter, follow:

were recognized on Epsom Downs. In future enclosures would be compared with the map.

The coming of the small car had enabled people to get to Epsom Downs, and on occasions they littered the place with paper and with broken glass that made the training of racehorses occasionally a matter of danger, both to animals and men.

The Association had accepted a suggestion from the Council that there should be a car park on Epsom Downs, to which admission should be free.

There would be a provision in the Bill whereby the Urban Council would secure a majority of the representation on the Board of Conservators to be established.

WIMBLEDON CHAMPIONSHIPS

First of Series of Articles

The first of a series of articles on the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships by "Veritas," the well-known sports writer of the Hongkong Telegraph, appears to-day. "Veritas," for the opening rounds, will confine himself to the Japanese players because, until the later rounds, they are of more interest to local readers, to many of whom they are known personally, than some of the European players.

SOUTH AFRICAN'S GREAT RECORD IN LAWN BOWLS

CONCLUDE TOUR OF ENGLAND

HONOURS EVEN IN WALES

On Saturday, at Carlisle, the South African bowlers concluded their English and Welsh programme with a victory over Cumberland and Westmoreland by 114 shots to 105.

They opened their official tour against Middlesex on May 9, losing by 3 shots. Since then they have played 27 English County Associations, losing only three more matches, and beating England in the Test match. In Wales they played 8 matches, two being unfinished through rain, but, including those, they won four and lost four, and Wales won the Test match.

Their record is as follows:

England.—Played 29 matches, won 25, lost four. Shots for 3,554, against 3,031.

Wales.—Played 8 matches, won four, lost four. Shots for 824, against 813.

Totals.—Played 37 matches, won 29, lost 8. Shots for 4,388, against 3,844, a balance of 544 shots.

CHICK HAFEY RETIRES

From Professional Baseball

Cincinnati, June 30. Charles (Chick) Hafey, a mainstay of the Cincinnati Reds, has gone to his California home to recover his health and probably will be lost to the club for the remainder of the season, it became known to-day.

Described as a "very slick man" by Jim Bottomley, Reds first baseman and perhaps Hafey's closest friend, the slugging outfielder departed with his wife by automobile for Walnut Creek, Calif., yesterday.

Hafey was laid up by a cold in Philadelphia about a month ago and had been unable to play since. He also was suffering with a sinus infection.

Bottomley said Hafey told him he did not intend to return until he was

JAPANESE AT WIMBLEDON

NISHIMURA'S DEFEAT BY PALMIERI

YAMAGISHI QUALIFIES AGAINST DE MORPURGO

OPENING DAY ON WORLD'S FAMOUS TENNIS COURTS

(By "Veritas")

Wimbledon, June 24.

Nishimura, the Japanese Davis Cupper and No. 2 national ranking player, although to-day enjoying the distinction of appearing on the No. 3 court which is bounded on one side by the new free concrete stand at Wimbledon, failed either to realise expectations or to live up to his reputation as an international player destined to become as famous as his late compatriot, Jiro Satoh.

Playing a nervous type of game and almost completely devoid of the subtleties and finesse which he exhibited in Hongkong, Nishimura fell a first round victim to G. Palmieri the Italian ace, losing by the scores of 2-6, 6-3, 3-6, 4-6.

Palmieri's ease of style which bordered on the nonchalant appeared to have an adverse psychological effect on Nishimura, who was plainly disconcerted by the Italian's quick baseline recoveries and his passing drives with which he answered the Japanese volleys and overhead smashes.

NISHIMURA'S MISTAKE

Nishimura, encouraged by the state of the court which called for hard hitting, endeavoured to drive the Italian off the green rectangle; but this was Nishimura's supreme mistake. Palmieri thrived on his opponent's driving which was not always of the best length and usually managed to add more pace and get nearer the lines in his return shots.

Palmieri's baseline game was so sound that it required more stroke variation on the part of Nishimura to beat the Italian. Nishimura, however, losing confidence over a couple of unsuccessful net excursions early in the match and unwilling further to risk mistakes by the adoption of more delicate drop shots continued to slam the ball to the feet of the invulnerable Palmieri.

Nishimura attacked strongly in the second set, but Palmieri never appeared to be worried and smilingly lost the set chiefly on his own errors. In the third and fourth sets when he continually placed the armour of a rapidly tiring Nishimura. Palmieri exposed an unsuspected weakness in Nishimura's array of strokes when he attacked his backhand court with a series of stinging backhand drives. Palmieri was undoubtedly the better player; he possessed a great variety of shots and made much better use of the court.

NICE WORK BY YAMAGISHI

Yamagishi's win at the expense of Baron H. L. de Morpurgo was as comfortable as he could expect against a player with such an impressive international record. After an indifferent start during which period he found the outside confines of the court more often than the inside, Yamagishi found his touch and proceeded to drive brilliantly on both hands. His work in the forecourt was also neat and he rarely wasted an advance to the net.

It was a Yamagishi incomparable to the player seen in a friendly exhibition in Hongkong last year. He was just as volatile but so much more consistent. He made full use of easy openings and tinged a display of fine all-court tennis with an occasional gem of a shot which completely confounded the former Italian Davis Cup player.

GREATLY IMPROVED PLAYER

Not the least impressive thing about Yamagishi's display was the unbounded confidence with which he made his strokes. There was a fluency in his racket-wielding which stamped him not only as an improved player, but one who might easily become a real danger to any of the seeded competitors.

My impression was that whereas Yamagishi had quickly adapted himself to the varying conditions of the English grass courts and had, in fact, improved his stroke production, Nishimura had found the contrast anything but to his liking and would obviously be a much more powerful performer on a hard surface.

"Absolutely O.K." even if it necessitated his quitting baseball.

Hafey had been troubled by illness in the early part of each season ever since he came from the St. Louis Cardinals to the Reds in 1933. Macphail said that Hafey can apply to Ford Frick, President of the National League, to be placed on the Voluntary retired list and can ask that he be reinstated within 60 days.

BOXER TURNING FILM STAR

MARCEL THIL AS GANGSTER

STARTING CAREER IN AUGUST

Paris. Marcel Thil, the world middle-weight boxing champion, will soon turn film-star.

After his fight against Candel, at the Stade Roland Garros on June 28, he will have four more open-air fights, and will then become a "gangster."

This bald-headed, amiable boxer has often said that if he was not world champion he would like nothing better than to play gangster roles on the screen, and now he is to get his chance.

He will star as a "tough" in a full-length film after the type of "Cheri-Bibi," with Gaston Leroux.

Mr. Alex. Taitard, his manager, states that Thil's film career will start during August.

Meanwhile he is in training at Joffe Dickson's camp at the Ile St. Maurice.

PERCY ALLISS
AGAIN!BRILLIANT WIN
IN SCOTLAND

ROUND OF 66

London, June 20.
Percy Alliss (Beaconsfield) is the man of the moment in professional golf. He won the inaugural three-day Scottish Open championship yesterday with an aggregate of 273 for the 72 holes on the King's course at Glenageary.

Less than a fortnight ago he was runner-up for the Leeds tournament, beaten in a great fight by Henry Cotton. A few months ago Alliss won the Italian Open championship with the wonderful aggregate of 262, with 67 as the worst of four rounds.

Glenageary's King's course is a more severe test, and his aggregate of 273 has only been beaten in tournaments held over courses of much shorter length. Glenageary is made for championship play, and the British women's event has been held there.

The most remarkable feature of Alliss's performance is that he broke the record by returning 66 for his final round, on which he had progressed only a few holes before he knew that a 69 was required. He had to beat a man who had already set a hot pace—J. J. Bussan having finished with 277. That 66, however, spreadeagled the field. His success yesterday will make him a strong fancy for next week's British Open.

Alliss had four strokes to spare from J. J. Bussan, who was second, with R. Burton, the first pacemaker in the final round, third. Burton had also beaten an average of 70 strokes per round with his aggregate of 279. All three had, during the four rounds, equalled the original record of 67 once, before Alliss lowered the figure.

There was a spate of low scoring at the close of the day, Ernest Whitcombe, Syd Easterbrook, and W. J. Cox all having a final round of 68, while A. M. Chevallier went one better with 67. In all cases they were too many strokes behind to stand any chance of catching Alliss. The first amateur was Mr. J. Lindsay (Glasgow University), who was among the players with an aggregate of 294.

With the third round completed, the stage was set for a brilliantly low aggregate, as Percy Alliss led the field with 207, followed by J. J. Bussan at 209 and G. A. Whitcombe, in company with Archie Compston, at 210. Of these, Alliss alone failed to break 70 in the round, but he returned a score of two under 4's, while Whitcombe and Compston finished in 69 and Bussan equalled the course record of 67.

RECORD EQUALLED
A cracking pace was set immediately the first couple finished the final round, for R. Burton (Hooton) equalled the record of 67, which gave him an aggregate of 279. It was a brilliant recovery on his part, for he had been five strokes behind Alliss after three rounds and, as events turned out, Alliss had to break 70 to lead the field.

Bussan did not start promisingly, for he put his second shot over the green at the second hole, failed to get his drive away at the fourth, and was then two over 4's. But he was to have three deuces, which considerably helped him. The first came at the fifth, where he played a glorious tee shot close to the pin. He turned in 35, and had his second two at the eleventh, where he holed from six yards. A bad second shot cost him a five at the thirteenth, but he drove to within eight yards of the pin at the fourteenth (285 yards) and holed the putt for an "eagle" two. Par figures followed, leaving him with a chance to equal record for the second time during the day. At the eighteenth, however, Bussan pulled his drive and cut his second into a bunker. He chipped out to within five yards of the pin and only just failed to hole the putt.

His card read:
Out: 4, 4, 5, 2, 4, 4, 3, 4—35.
Home: 4, 2, 4, 5, 2, 2, 4, 3, 4—66.

The idiom of cricket still pervades the game of baseball after its adoption in a limited way in England. British sport fans welcome the colour injected into the American game, but cannot forego their efforts to link it up with their own favourite summer sport. As far as equipment goes, everything was fine when Streatham was matched with Putney (above), but here is an English captain's writer's description of the action displayed. "The Putney pitcher bowled a clever fast one across the square, which the Streatham player missed completely for a strike. The basekeeper and referee are shown. This is scarcely in keeping with American idiom."

Once he had finished, the crowd surged out to meet Alliss, who required a round of 69 to head Bussan. Alliss started steadily enough, his long game being perfect, but he had no luck on the putting greens or his start of 4, 4, 4, 4, 3 might easily have been two shots better. He continued serenely on his way and never looked like taking a 5. Any luck on the putting greens would have given him a phenomenal score, as on fourteen greens he had only to tap the ball into the hole. During the round he required only 34 putts, and that might easily have been 30. Only once did he hole a long one, at the sixth, where his ball dropped from six yards. The fifteenth saw his one and only bad shot, for he was bunkered, but chipping out neatly Alliss holed from a yard for his three, and then went on to complete his wonderful record with the following figures:

Chinese Bathing Club Win
Invitation Race

The Victoria Recreation Club's night gala last Saturday evening was attended by a large and distinguished gathering, among those present being His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, Sir Thomas Southern, and Lady Southern, Commodore C. G. Sedgwick and Mrs. Sedgwick, and Capt. J. R. Craig, A.D.C.

The spectators were provided with some fine entertainment, the feature of the evening being the 200 yards invitation relay race which was won by the Chinese Bathing Club. This race was very close, the Chinese Y.M.C.A. and the Young Companions' Association, who were second and third respectively, being only a yard or two behind.

Wilfred Lawrence again proved that he is the champion swimmer in the Colony when he covered the 50 yards free style invitation race in the fast time of 25 4/5 secs.

Dancing followed the swimming, and a large number of couples took the floor.

The results were as follows:
50 Yards Free Style Handicap (Boys under 12 years): 1. G. P. Jorge; 2. L. Gutierrez. Time: 38 1/5 secs.

100 Yards Free Style Handicap ("C" Class Aggregate): 1. N. Dotts and L. M. Romodios (Dead-heat); 3. J. J. Figueiredo. Times: 78 4/5 secs, and 66 4/5 secs respectively.

HISTORIC OCCASION

BRILLIANT FUNCTION AT FRENCH CONSULATE

In accordance with a custom which has prevailed in Hongkong since 1862, a reception in honour of the anniversary of the taking of the Bastille (July 14) was held at the residence of the Consul General for France, Monsieur M. Soulange-Telesier, on Saturday.

As in former years it was a brilliant function, attended by prominent members of the French community in the Colony, the leading British representatives and members of the Consular body.

Amongst those present were Capt. W. J. R. Cragg A.D.C., representing His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government (Sir Thomas Southern); Capt. W. S. A. Clough-Taylor, representing His Excellency the General Officer Commanding the Major General O. C. Borrett, His Honour the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor and Lady MacGregor, Brigadier H. G. Sedgwick and Commodore C. G. Sedgwick and Mrs. Sedgwick, accompanied by Pay. Lieut. Cmdr. Swamy, Secretary to the Commodore, and Mrs. Swamy, the Hon. Mr. D. W. Tratman and Mrs. Tratman, the Hon. Mr. C. G. Alabaster, the Hon. Mr. N. L. Smith and Mrs. Smith, the Hon. Mr. Edwin Taylor, the Hon. Sir Henry Pollock, the Hon. Mr. W. H. Bell and Mrs. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Shields, Comm. Uff A. Bianconi, Consul General for Italy, Mr. H. Van der Straeten, Consul General for Belgium, Mr. H. Gourley, Vice-Consul for the United States, Mr. J. G. Laborinho, Consul for Portugal, Mr. F. A. Xavier, Consul for Brazil, Mr. C. Lucayo, Consul for Nicaragua, Mr. Bonachea y. Romero, Consul for Cuba, Col. H. B. L. Dowbiggin and Mrs. Dowbiggin, Major and Mrs. Brazier-Creagh, and many others.

Gentlemen—The King
Proposing the health of His Majesty King George V, M. Soulange-Telesier said:

It is a special pleasure for me to say these few words in discharging my duties as a host, and it is very sincerely that I thank you all for joining in the celebration of the "Fete Nationale Française".

It is an "old custom" in this Consulate, dating as far back as 1862.

From my archives it seems that in those days the Consular orations were much more stiff and "boiled-shirt" affairs than in later years. Judging from recent precedents I may venture to say that as regards length they have followed the fashion of the bathing suit. Some will regret it, some will approve it, as for anything else in this world.

I noticed also that in recent years a very favourite subject for these orations has been "Peace". I cannot remember how many I have heard, and well laboured speeches too, on that topic. This has prompted, in my mind the naughty thought that "Peace", being ordinarily represented as a lady, must have had a rather doubtful reputation to be talked about so much.

Anglo-French Relations
The fine art of diplomacy is said to be to steer a middle course. Whatever may be the truth of it, I will take a plunge in shortening this speech and in avoiding "peace" gossip.

This policy leaves me free to attend entirely to the subject which is nearest to my heart, that is to say, the subject of the relations of the French Colony in Hongkong with their British friends.

They have always been friendly; but in the past, they were handicapped to a certain extent by the difficulties of both languages. In recent years there has been an extensive change and improvement

In that direction and to-day I have no difficulty in picking up on both sides of the fence, specially among the flowers of the younger set, the proofs of this evolution. This fact and its quality have been shown to their best during the celebration of the King's Silver Jubilee, in which both sides of this gathering joined and participated most heartily.

Ladies and Gentlemen, let us take the renewed opportunity which is offered to us to-day and join me respectfully and sincerely in saying: To The King.

Deep Affection
When the toast had been honoured in champagne, Sir Atholl MacGregor, replied and in turn called on the gathering to drink the health of the President of the French Republic, M. Albert Lebrun.

Sir Atholl said: Mr. Consul General, Ladies and Gentlemen.—In the regrettable absence of Major General Borrett it falls to my lot to reply to the toast which you have so ably and so felicitously proposed, and in due course in my turn propose an equally worthy and happy toast which is so appropriate on this day. But before I do so I would like to say one or two words.

I would like to take this opportunity of saying that principally on behalf of those whom you have so aptly called to-day our British friends. Few, if any of us, I imagine who are here to-day have had the opportunity of attending all these annual celebrations since 1862. Although I may look like it, I am certainly not one of those, I assure you (Laughter). I cannot help feeling how deep the affection for our two races must have been in those distant days before there were electric roof fans to alleviate the heat, when people came here in the boiled shirts, testifying to the deep affection and esteem which our race always have had for yours.

I say for myself that had I been here in those days my boiled shirt would have been a mere figment of fantasy. It would have been quite unaffordable before I had been here a few minutes. (Laughter).

I am going to follow you in taking for my theme the friendship of our two races. It must be, indeed it is, a very real deep and lasting friendship, and whatever it has been in the past it cannot but be deep and lasting when we think of the way we have stood together during the worst years of our history.

It is the earnest hope of all your British friends here to-day, and I think I may include with them all those of every nation here who join in your hospitality, that our relations may be unimpaired.

I thank you for the warm terms in which you have asked those present to drink the health of our King and I now ask them to join me in drinking fervently and sincerely the toast of the President of the French Republic.

The gathering enthusiastically responded to the toast.

Tientsin Celebration
A lantern parade will be staged to-night by the French troops stationed here, to celebrate the fall of the Bastille. At noon to-morrow a reception will be given by the local French consul, General M. Crepin, to the Chinese officials and members of the local consular bodies.—Central News Agency.

COMMUNIST WEB

ALLEGED ACTIVITIES ON U.S. PACIFIC COAST

New York, July 14.
An anonymous investigating committee has reported to the International Longshoremen's Association, charging that communists have created an organisation for the purpose of intensifying communist activity among Pacific Coast marine workers.

The committee alleges that the communist organisation maintains a liaison with China through a man named Dolson, whose Chinese name is Doon Ting. Doon Ting is alleged to be handling the funds of the organisation for transmission to Chinese communist leaders. The report asserts that he sends messages to the United States in the lining of the covers of bibles and other religious works.

The committee also charges that the organisation has contacts in Hawaii, San Pedro and other maritime centres.

Harry Bridges, the Australian militant, who is leader of the Longshoremen's Union in America, has branded the report as a tissue of lies.

It is disclosed that a serious split has occurred at the Convention, and West Coast maritime representatives are leading a bloc that is seeking to depose Bridges from the leadership of the Longshoremen's federation.—Long Press.

U.S. COURT JUDGMENT AGAINST MR. RAIDER

Tientsin, July 13.
The United States Court has given judgment against Mr. Raider in the case against the Peiping Union Medical College.

Union Medical College.—Raider will pay the costs.—Reuter.

In the case Mr. Harry Raider, a well-known Tientsin resident, made a claim for U.S.$10,000 against the Peiping Union Medical College and costs for alleged negligence and incompetence when his wife was in hospital under treatment for cancer.

The plaintiff alleged during the trial that a cancer expert was employed by the Hospital but that he played by the Hospital but that he was not allowed to treat her. He alleged also that they hastened her death and caused her unnecessary physical and mental suffering.

Against this, evidence was given stating that her case was a hopeless one and that everything possible was done by the Hospital authorities.

CHINESE STUDENT DROWNED

DISAPPEARED WHILE BATHING AT LAICHIKOK

A 17 years old Chinese student named Mak Hon-kuen, of 122 Fa-yuen Street, Kowloon, disappeared while bathing at Laichikok yesterday afternoon and is believed to have been drowned.

It appears that the student went with two other students named Chan Chan-yu and Leung Chok-chan to pull around Laichikok Bay, in a sampan. When some distance from the shore he jumped overboard for a swim. After a while Mak Hon-kuen got into difficulties and his companions went to his rescue. He disappeared, however, before they could reach him, and although a search was made in the vicinity by a Police launch which arrived on the scene soon after his disappearance no trace of his body could be found.

AUSTRIA FEARS EXPLOSION

STARHEMBERG MAY BE REGENT

MOBILISATION THREAT FROM NEIGHBOURS

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 15, 1 p.m.)

Vienna, July 14.

Prince von Starhemberg flew from Venice to Vienna to-day and is ready to establish a regency or dictatorship, supported by the Heimwehr, if Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, following his tragic motor mishap yesterday, loses control of the Cabinet.

Chancellor Schuschnigg is still maintaining a grip on affairs, in spite of the shock of the death of his wife in the accident in which he and his son, the nurse and chauffeur were seriously injured. The stricken Chancellor arrived in Vienna by train to-day, in company with the President, Herr Wilhelm Miklas, under a heavy guard.

Austria is most excited, sensing the imminence of a Hapsburg restoration, the elevation of Archduke Otto to the throne, and, as a direct consequence, the danger of a mobilisation of the Little Entente, whose members have declared that such a move would follow upon the return of the Austrian nation to monarchy.

A dangerous situation is feared in Austria itself if the investigations now proceeding reveal that Dr. Schuschnigg's car was sabotaged, as is feared. Dr. Schuschnigg has ordered the most rigid censorship to be preserved with respect to this inquiry.

It has been revealed that the Chancellor's little son, Kurt, eight years of age, broke his thigh in the accident, and that his nurse, at the risk of her own life, protected him with her own body.—United Press.

EARLIER DESPATCH

An earlier report from Reuter indicated that the tension in Austria was not great and that Prince von Starhemberg was in control temporarily. The report reads:

Vienna, July 14.

Prince von Starhemberg, Vice-Chancellor, arrived in the capital to-day to assume the Chancellor's responsibilities, following the serious injury of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg in a week-end motor-tragedy. Frau Schuschnigg, wife of the Chancellor, was killed.

Prince von Starhemberg attended a Cabinet Council meeting to-night.

The country remains absolutely quiet and it appears certain that the tragic accident will lead to no political repercussions, though the influence of the Heimwehr, at whose head is Prince von Starhemberg, may be somewhat increased owing to his elevation to the Chancellorship temporarily while Dr. Schuschnigg is on leave of absence.

Dr. Schuschnigg was somewhat better to-day and was able to endure breaking the news of his wife's death to their son.

Contrary to previous reports, the Schuschnigg chauffeur, although given up by doctors yesterday, is still alive, and there is hope for his recovery.—Reuter.

FLOOD MENACE REMAINS

12,000 DEAD IN ICHANG AREA

100,000 ARE HOMELESS

Flood conditions in the North are generally serious. In the Ichang area 12,000 lives have been lost, it is estimated. In West Shantung 100,000 are homeless. At Hankow the water level remains unchanged and the menace remains.

Peiping, July 15.

Although the situation in West Shantung is still most serious, there is considerably less threat of a flood disaster in the Tsinan area.

The water level at Lokow, which was 30.7 feet on July 12 has now dropped to 29 feet.

Reports are at hand also that the river level in West Shantung has dropped, but this is possibly due to the break in the river dykes along a 5,000 foot front reported from Mouling.

As a result of this breach, it is stated, large streams of flood water are flowing in several directions, endangering the towns of Chuan-chow, Yuncheng, Tsaochow and Chuen.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE

Meanwhile, the loss of life in the Ichang area is unofficially fixed at 12,000.

In West Shantung, according to reliable reports, 100,000 are homeless.

AT HANKOW

At Hankow, according to the latest despatches from that city, where there are a large number of foreign residents, conditions are at the moment unchanged. There is still great danger of an inundation of the district.

The water is at present at the 51.3 foot level.

The level at Ichang has fallen but at Chungking it rose slightly yesterday.—Reuter.

Extradition Committal Opposed

COURT REFUSES TO QUASH

MAGISTRATE CRITICISED

An application for the quashing of the committal order made against Tong Man-ku, alias Tong Chan-mung, a fugitive from Canton was brought by Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K.C., before the Chief Justice, Sir Atholl MacGregor, at the Supreme Court this morning.

The order was made by Mr. W. Schofield, the Senior Magistrate, at the request of the Canton authorities, the fugitive being alleged to have embezzled sums of money from the On Cheong-Pawnshop in Canton, of which he was said to have been the managing partner.

Mr. Jenkin was instructed by Mr. F. X. D'Almada, S.R., for the fugitive, and Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney-General, instructed by Mr. W. J. Lockhart-Smith, Assistant Crown Solicitor, was for the Crown.

Mr. Jenkin said his argument would, he believed, present His Lordship with two extremely interesting points of grave importance in the administration of justice, whether in a Magistrate's Court or elsewhere. A very brief review of the facts, he said, disclosed this:—The fugitive was arrested in Hongkong and was produced in due course before Mr. Schofield, the Senior Magistrate. There were a number of formal remands, and the first day on which any evidence was taken at all was on May 15. A number of formal witnesses were called and also a man named Wong Piu-sang who would figure prominently in the proceedings. His evidence was the last taken that afternoon and he was examined in chief and in chief only. His evidence concluded somewhere around 4.30.

SOLICITOR'S REQUEST

The fugitive at that time, and throughout, was represented by Mr. F. X. D'Almada, S.R., who at that sitting asked the Magistrate that he might reserve his cross-examination. That request was granted. Not only was it granted by the Magistrate, but it was also noted in his official record. The next day, May 16, was the day of the next sitting and on that occasion, unfortunately, Mr. D'Almada was ill, and he sent his son up to the Police Court to make a note of the evidence. His son knew nothing about the case whatsoever and he went merely to watch it for his father. That was also noted.

A perusal of the deposition disclosed that on that occasion four witnesses were called. The first two were the alleged owners of the property on which was based the charge against the fugitive, the third was a sergeant of the Canton Police Force, and the fourth was Chief Detective Inspector W. Shannon. The cross-examination of those witnesses was reserved by the Magistrate, for the obvious ground that Mr. D'Almada, S.R., should recover and conduct their interrogation. The third day, which was the last day as far as he (Mr. Jenkin) (Continued on Page 7.)

FURTHER BELFAST RIOTING

FOUR KILLED IN STREET FIGHTS

Belfast, July 14.

A grave and tense situation exists in Belfast to-day.

After three days of intermittent rioting and looting, and the setting of a number of fires in stores and private houses, the casualties are now four dead and 78 seriously injured. This number of wounded, it is officially reported, are in hospital. How many more may be injured hidden, fearing the consequences of their rash acts, it is impossible to estimate. There are a great number of minor injuries among rioters and police.

Having set fire to twelve houses in York Street, where the fighting broke out three days ago, and having completely wrecked thirty-eight others, the mob spread its activities abroad to-day and reached Sandy Row District where it set fire to a shop.

Two other shops were burned after being wrecked and looted.

Two companies of troops of the Border Regiment, with steel helmets and rifles, and bayonets ready, have reinforced the police.

The death-roll is now five, owing to the death of a wounded man.

All was quiet early this morning.—Reuter.

Four of the crew and two passengers were killed and thirteen passengers and one of the crew were saved when the big Dutch airliner, from Amsterdam to Hamburg, Copenhagen and Malmö, Sweden, crashed at the Schiphol aerodrome, Amsterdam, early to-day.

An official statement says that as the liner was starting for Hamburg her two engines suddenly failed, just as she left the ground. The pilot attempted a forced landing and ran into a dyke. The plane was wrecked and caught fire.—Reuter.

Britain's Exports Increasing

STRIKING ADVANCE FOR HALF YEAR

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 15, 4 a.m.)

London, July 14.

Although Great Britain's exports for June declined compared with the May figures, the returns for the first six months of 1935 show an increase of £16,500,000 when compared to the first six months of 1934, and nearly £35,000,000 compared with the 1933 figures.

Exports for June totalled £33,000,000, a decrease of over £2,000,000 compared with May, but an increase of £8,000,000 over June of 1934, which is the fairest comparison when an indication of the trend of commerce is sought.

Imports for June were £38,000,000, a decrease of over £6,500,000 compared with June last. Thus the balance of trade against the country is slightly less top-heavy.

The imports into Britain during the first six months of the year amounted to £359,000,000, a decrease of nearly £3,000,000 compared with the first half of 1934, but an increase of £30,000,000 compared with 1933.—Reuter Special.

EX-BUDGET DIRECTOR GIVES WARNING

New York, July 13.

The former Director of the Budget, Mr. Lewis Williams Douglas, in a volume entitled "Liberal Tradition," issues a warning that a continuation of Government expenditures will cause monetary inflation and eventually political dictatorship.

He declared the Government's plan to spend its way out of the depression.

Further he planned for economy and urged free competition and flexibility of prices and costs and the mobility of labour and goods.

Also he advocated a modification of tariffs, with the purpose of maintaining a balance between agriculture and industry.

The volume also urges a sound currency and reformed banking system together with a responsible fiscal policy "which will assure stability of exchanges."—United Press.

ITALY'S ATTITUDE LESS HOSTILE

LIKELY TO ATTEND LEAGUE MEETING

ABYSSINIA WILL FIGHT IF INVADED

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, July 15, 8.50 a.m.)

Geneva, July 14.

If a meeting of the League of Nations Council is called on July 24, it is learned here that the Italian Government will in all probability send representatives.

The authorities in Rome are adopting a less hostile attitude towards the League of Nations feeling that Great Britain is unlikely to insist that League action be taken against Italy in the event of a war with Abyssinia.

Italy considers she has a very strong case to put before the League and will probably move that Abyssinia should be asked to relinquish League membership.—Reuter Special.

AVENOL'S FINDING.

London, July 14.

M. Avenol, Secretary-General of the League of Nations, left this afternoon for Paris.

He stated before his departure that the League Council would meet on July 26, as arranged at the last session, unless a scheme of arbitration between the Italian and Abyssinian Governments was introduced before that time.

He declared he had found among the British public and in the House of Commons strong support of the collective peace system.—Reuter Special.

New York, July 14.

"In no circumstances will we accept a railway or other zone in or through Ethiopia to be administered and policed by Italy," declared the Emperor of Abyssinia in a special cabled message to the New York Times, in response to telegraphic queries.

"History teaches that the creation of such a zone is inevitably followed by annexation."

"We shall continue our peaceful efforts and only if Italy invades Ethiopia will we offer armed resistance."—Reuter.

world over advise: Give him a little Castoria and you will see a marked improvement the first day.

Authorities have found intestinal absorption of poisons to be the cause of most child ailments. Even when the child's habits may seem regular, poisons seep through the system and do damage. The stomach is upset. Food is not digested properly.
The nerves lose their delicate balance.
Nothing can correct this insidious condition quite as easily and naturally as Castoria. It tastes so good children beg for it. And it swiftly purges the little system of poisons. It settles the stomach, improves digestion and restores nerve-poise. Then Nature does the rest as only Nature can. Appetite for food quickly returns. Health is restored to normal.
And as a result the child gains weight fast and becomes sturdy and strong.
Now take care of your child this safe, drugless way. Get a bottle of Castoria and try it. Results will delight you.

Soviet Cinema Chiefs
to Visit London

WIDER MARKET

One of the main purposes of the Soviet Commission, headed by the chief of the Cinema Council of the U.S.S.R., Choumatsky, on its visit to London, is to create a wider market in Western Europe for Russian films.

Previous efforts made in Paris in that direction were rather disappointing, the screening of Russian pictures at one cinema having led to a loss of about £27,000, despite the fact that the films exhibited were supposed to be "super productions."

The modern Soviet product, although having ceased to be a mere propaganda medium, is still lacking in appeal. This, however, is not caused by the lack of skill on the part of the technicians, but by the lack of suitable equipment and material (says the Kine Weekly).
The domestic raw stock factories, optical plants, and photo-chemical works erected in 1930-1933, are unable to cope with the demand, not only of the cinema theatres, which are constantly increasing in numbers, but also of the studios.

An example of this is demonstrated by the fact that the entire number of film cameras at present available in Russia does not exceed 250, many of which are worn out and antiquated.

Of equal importance are the difficulties caused by the unsatisfactory state of the electrical equipment.

Up till now, the quality of the raw stock manufactured in Russia has been very disappointing, especially in regard to its sensitivness to light. This is caused by the bad quality of the chemicals available as well as the insufficient equipment of the plant.

The same must be said about the laboratories, the equipment of which is worn out to such an extent that it is hardly able to deal with the increasing output of the raw stock factories.

The laboratories are in special need of automatic developing and printing machines. A small number were imported from foreign countries, but the first home-made units, numbering four or five, which are to be delivered in the current year, are about one-quarter of what is really needed.

DIVORCE NOT WANTED

John Barrymore has assumed a "passive stand" in the divorce proceedings begun by his wife, Dolores Costello, according to his lawyer in Los Angeles, Mr. William H.
Nebbett.

Announcing that he had advised his client not to return to Los Angeles to contest the divorce suit (says Reuter), Mr. Nebbett said that Barrymore "does not want a divorce."

"He is still fond of Mrs. Barrymore and would like to stay married to her," the lawyer declared.
"He expects to support her two children in the future, as he has done in the past."

Mr. Barrymore described reports about a romance between him and Miss Elaine Barrie, the young New York college student, aboard his yacht Infanta at Havana, as "a lot of bunk."

He said that Miss Barrie had great talents for the radio field, and would appear with him in broadcast programmes. They were preparing a number of skits aboard the yacht, he added.

ONE quart milk, six yolks eggs,

Beat the yolks of eggs well. Add

Mix well, then return to a double saucepan, and stir till it coats the cold add the vanilla, and freeze in sugar and essence than required for a boiled custard, as it loses

BANKES NOT A SHAREHOLDER

REPLY TO CHARGES BY COMMUNIST

Sir John Eldon Bankes, chairman of the Royal Commission on the Private Manufacture of and Trading in Arms, recently denied that he held shares in Imperial Chemical Industries following the uttering of certain charges.

Sir John referred to a statement made by Mr. Harry Pollitt, who had given evidence on behalf of the Communist party of Great Britain.

Sir John said that it had been stated by Mr. Pollitt that his (Sir John's) name appeared on the register of Imperial Chemical Industries as the holder of a substantial number of shares in that company.

"Had it not been that I was a member of this Commission I should not have taken any notice of the statement," said Sir John,
"but I recognise how important it is that a member of this Commission should be free from any appearance of bias."

He therefore wished to state that, though certain United Alkali shares, recently converted into Imperial Chemical Industries shares, stood in his name as trustee of the estate of a relative, that trust expired last year. All the shares passed out of his name months before he was invited to become a member of the Commission.

HEREDITY AN IMPORTANT ELEMENT

FRANCE'S CASES REVIEWED

Paris, June 26.

If you want to live to be a hundred, get centenarians for parents.

Heredity is one of the most important elements in longevity, according to an investigation of the cases of 66 persons in France who have reached the age of 100 years.

Mme. Lanoix, of Dent-Lume,
103, lost her father at the age of 33, it is true, but he was carried away by pneumonia. His father and mother died at 82 and 72 respectively and Mme. Lanoix's mother lived to 82. She has children living aged 78, 67 and 65.

The father of Mme. Verite, 100, died at 80, her aunt at 82.

The mothers or fathers of twelve other centenarians died at the ages of 98, 99, 86, 96, 90, 94, 95, 97, 85 and 80.

Heredity naturally continues to operate, and most of the centenarians have children who show no signs of decay at well past the scriptural three score years and ten. Only two of the centenarians, incidentally, both unmarried women, are without children.

Mme. Montreuil, 100, treats her first-born still as a child, in spite of his 81 years. She has twelve others, the youngest 60. Mme.
Bourgade, now a few months short of 102, has four sons of 81, 72, 70 and 65. Mme. Berlin, 100, has only one daughter, but she has six grand-children, six great grand-children, and two great

LESS WEIGHT AND HEIGHT

Although these centenarians and their children remain of sturdy appearance in their seventies, eighties and nineties, they are not as a rule above medium stature. Of the 66 women centenarians, only six had ever weighed above 110 pounds at any time during their lives.
Mme. Gentilhouse, who contradicted the usual rule that weight drops between 60 and 80 years, by weighing more at 101½ than at the time of her marriage, weighed only 81½ and 74½ pounds on those two occasions.

Height naturally corresponded to weight, with only eight of the 66 centenarians, both men and women, reaching five feet three.
In this connection it may be noted that General Tom Thumb lived to 60, and that a woman dwarf of three feet nine lived to 103.

One of France's centenarians
M. Dufour of Seriat, was born prematurely two months too soon, and wasn't expected to live.

Generally speaking, the centenarians had rarely called in doctors, but whether their good health was the cause or result of this fact was not specified. Three of them had undergone operations in the course of their lives, and three of them had broken limbs.

London.—Eamon De Valera's expressed hope that he looks forward to the cordial friendship between the English and Irish peoples has stirred the hopes of the million-odd Irish residents in Great Britain.

Whether it will cause peace negotiations to be opened between the two countries remains to be seen. J. H. Thomas, dominion secretary and British minister responsible, has often said that the "door is still open," with De Valera now making a similar statement, another Anglo-Irish peace conference ought to be averted during 1935.

De Valera's goodwill offer to England was made in the course of a letter written to Captain Popkess, chief constable of Nottingham, who served with the army of Ireland during the troubles, and who had sent to him the last letter written by one of the Sinn Féiners executed for their share in the 1916 rising.

In his letter to De Valera at the New Year season, Captain Popkess stated:

"During the post-war troubled times in Ireland I was there with my regiment.

"Probably the most repugnant duty of the soldier is the carrying out of raids upon civilised households. During one of these raids I came by the last letter of a patriot written before his execution.

"To-day, when going through an old box I discovered it. This is the season of peace and goodwill, Mr. President, and I return Houston's letter in that spirit for disposal as you may see fit.

"May I also hope that this action may help to promote a better feeling between races who, though secretly admiring each

"FAILED IN TIME OF NEED"

EX-MINISTER ATTACKS ARMS INDUSTRY WAR-TIME EXPERIENCES

"I know of no case in our history where a great industry has been so disastrous a failure in the time of need."

Dr. Christopher Addison, Minister of Munitions from December 1916 to July 1917, made this statement when speaking of the response of the arms industry to the emergency of 1914.

He was putting forward a strong plea before the Royal Commission on the Private Manufacture of and Trading in Arms, at Westminster, for the centralisation of the industry.

"Existing arrangements," said Dr. Addison, "proved quite inadequate to meet the demands of the first ten months of the war. There was a most alarming deficiency of high explosive shells, and the troops in France had to be rationed to scanty and almost inadequate allowances."

"It cannot be denied that nine months after the late war had begun, and when every effort had been made to make the system of reliance on private manufacture meet the nation's need, the system had proved to be a tragic and perilous failure."

"In the case of the chief munitions firms, deliveries were so terribly in arrears that the promises for delivery were a source of danger."

TERRIBLE RISK

Dr. Addison submitted that such difficulties "indicate the need for national control on a similar scale in any emergency."

"The difficulties and disputes arising out of the dilution of labour during the war were so notorious that I confine myself to pointing out that the questions of principle, sentiment, and interest involved could not conceivably have been faced, let alone settled, by any authority other than the Government of the country. If those questions had been left for settlement by private employers, with or without support from the Government, the resulting friction and disturbances would not merely have hindered the output of munitions but would have made it quite impossible to carry on the war at all."

The experience of the late war, said Dr. Addison, pointed to the necessity, from the point of view of national defence, of the establishment of a State Department responsible for the manufacture and assembly of all articles manufactured only for purposes of war.

"ANOTHER CONSIDERATION"

"This conclusion," he added, "is entirely apart from the grave consideration of national policy relating to the undesirability of manufactures of this kind being in private hands, for the purpose of gain."

Dr. Addison emphasised the difficulties caused early in the war by the complete lack of information as to the respective costs of armaments.

By the original practice of placing contracts on a basis of tender, the transactions were limited to a relatively small group of manufacturers, with whom there necessarily came to be established a close

PAINLESS CHILD-BIRTH

REMARKABLE NEW ANAESTHETIC

Atlantic City.

The successful use of a new anaesthetic to render child-birth painless has been reported to the American Medical Association here by Dr. Ralph T. Knight, assistant Professor of Surgery at the University of Minnesota.

Dr. Knight is also Chief of Staff in Anaesthesia at the Minneapolis General Hospital.

The new anaesthesia is known as Cyclopropane. It is a hydrocarbon gas, each molecule consisting of three atoms of carbon and six of hydrogen. It has a faint, sweet odour.

Dr. Knight revealed that it had been used the past eighteen months at both Minneapolis General Hospital and the University Hospital for General Surgery. It has only recently been tried in child-birth.

He said he was giving it to patients mixed with oxygen, about 10 per cent. of the anaesthetic to 90 per cent. oxygen. Two inhalations, he said, at the onset of each labour pain, are sufficient to dispel the pain without retarding the labour. Sometimes, he said, one inhalation was enough.

As the time for the delivery came, he said, the concentration was increased, the mother then being put completely under.—United Press.

working relationship, and there seemed to have arisen a sort of understanding as to the prices to be paid for different supplies. As far as he ascertained, there was no effective competition between these firms as to price.

Dr. Addison maintained that only by a system of centralisation "would it be possible to mobilise and secure the rapid utilisation of appropriate manufacturing capacities to provide expansion in the case of war." This central department would be responsible in peace time for the supply and manufacture in State-owned factories of all productions for war use only. It would also be prepared with the necessary control orders in respect of a number of classified private establishments.

Asked about the difficulties of international trading in arms, Dr. Addison said:—"I suggest that in any case it would be much easier to deal with the international questions that are at stake if the control of the manufacture were, in the first instance, in the State's hands, and you were not embarrassed by the hundreds of cross-currents of interest you would have to pluck at if you were dealing with it under the present conditions. It is practically impossible to deal fairly with the restriction of sale to outside States under the existing scheme."

Spider's Venom Medicine For Heart Ailment

HUMAN BEINGS OFFER FOR EXPERIMENT

New York.

So-called "human guinea-pigs" for scientific experimentation are being recruited on a large scale at a New York medical college. Nearly 72 men and women students have submitted themselves to various poisons.

The experiments were disclosed to 500 physicians meeting here who also heard that venom of the deadly black spider has been proved a heart treatment. A new drug, it was revealed, so slows down bodily process that a man treated with it needs to shave only once a week. The new drug, made of desiccated thyroid, is for chronic heart disease.

The "human guinea pigs," at New York Homeopathic Medical College, have been given sulphur and aluminium poisons and next will be subjected to lead poisoning. Dr. Linn J. Boyd, college pharmacologist, described the tests to members of the American Institute of Homeopathy but was unwilling to reveal results. He urged wider use of such "human volunteers in the service of humanity."

"The time is coming when no drug will be allowed general use before it has had a thorough test on a selected group of human beings," Dr. Lloyd said. He added that animals were less satisfactory.

Dr. Milton J. Eisbeck's findings on desiccated thyroid were considered extremely important. Chronic heart disease sufferers treated with the drug were found to need only 70 per cent. of the usual amount of oxygen. Every bodily function, even to the growth of hair, slowed down. The result was less strain on the heart.

The black widow spider's venom, deadly poison, was first suggested as a heart treatment 10 years ago, but only recently, he disclosed, have hundreds of specialists begun giving it, greatly diluted in a salt solution, to victims of angina pectoris.

Dr. Boyd gets a supply of venom, enough for thousands of treatments every six months from a friend in Brazil whose hobby is raising deadly snakes, spiders, and scorpions. The supply is a fraction of an ounce.—United Press.

MAKING WAR ON PIRATES

CANTON OFFICER AT BIAS BAY

Canton, July 15.
To deal effectively with suppression of pirates, the Canton High Command has sent Captain Yang Chao-lun to Bias Bay. He assumed his post as executive officer of the Piracy Suppression office yesterday.

Captain Yang graduated at the Naval Academy in Hulatao, Manchuria and joined the high naval science research class of the Naval War College at Tsingtao. Until recently he was the commanding officer of the cruiser Chao Ho and served as navigation officer and gunnery officer on other Chinese cruisers.

While foreign vessels have carried Indian guards and installed grills to separate the passengers from the bridge and the officers' quarters as precaution against pirates, the Canton High Command believes that the fundamental remedy lies in stamping out the marauders around Bias Bay.

SAILS FROM HONGKONG

Captain Yang left here over the week-end for Hongkong by boarding a torpedo boat at Whampoa. At Hongkong he changed to the gunboat Kwong Kum and sailed direct to Bias Bay, where he is making a thorough inspection of the place.

Besides mapping out a scheme for the suppression of pirates, the naval officer is to devise a plan for the naval defence of Kwangtung's coast. He has made a study of coastal defence and artillery while serving as gunnery officer in other Chinese warships.

General Chan Chai-long, Commander-in-Chief of the 1st Group Army, highly praised Captain Yang for his refusal to join Commander Tang Ching-hai, who took the cruisers Hai Chi and Hai Shen

Chan Kwok, 27, unemployed, was sentenced to one month's hard labour by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning when he pleaded guilty to the theft of a wrist-watch from No. 24 Nam Kok Street, second floor, the property of Wong So, 27, a woman, on Saturday. Defendant stated that he was a fellow-traveller of complainant, and that he had taken the watch in order to raise money to start a business. He intended to return the money to complainant later on. Inspector Chester-Wynne stated that the watch was pawned for $2, and the sum of $1.52 was found on defendant. The money found on defendant was returned to complainant.

DEATH OF MR. A. M. PRESTON

SHANGHAI LAWYER FORMERLY OF HONGKONG

Following a prolonged illness, the death occurred last Thursday, at Shanghai, of Mr. Arthur Montague Preston, a partner in the legal firm of Messrs. Ellis and Hays, at his home, 222 Hungjao Road, House No. 41. He was 47 years of age.

Born on April 16, 1888, in Chester, Mr. Preston was the son of Mr. Arthur Collingwood Preston. His family is Irish and connected with that of Viscount Gormanston. He was educated at Charterhouse and came out East in 1914, when he joined the legal firm of Messrs. Johnston, Stokes, & Master, in Hongkong.

When the War broke out, Mr. Preston was not permitted, as he wished, to join up, but was held in Hongkong on the Reserve. Finally, however, in 1918, he reached France and joined the 1st Bn. of the Cheshires, in a Territorial unit of which he held a commission before the War. After the Armistice, he was with the army of occupation in Cologne, where he was one of the Court-martial officers, and it was there that he first met the late Mr. Tycho Wing.

In 1912, he came back to China. This time, Shanghai was his headquarters and he joined the firm of Ellis & Hays. Subsequently, he became a partner in the firm and, for a time, was again associated with the late Mr. Tycho Wing. His recent partner has been Mr. H. A. Rocks.

Mr. Preston had a ready Irish wit. House-boating was his great relaxation over week-ends, and he was a frequent visitor to Henli. He was also a very keen dry-fly fisherman and a past master at that art.

He is survived by his wife and two brothers; both the latter are in Surrey. The remains were cremated on Saturday.

JAPAN AND CHINA

Sir Samuel Hoare's declaration in the House of Commons a few days ago that Far Eastern stability largely depends on the establishment of good relations between China and Japan serves to bring to mind one of the outstanding factors preventing the attainment of accord. We refer to the Japanese demands, repeatedly made of late, that the anti-Japanese tendencies prevailing in China must be eliminated. The extent to which these tendencies have developed may be a matter of opinion, but, however deeply seated they may be, there can be little question that they are an effect of a cause which must be removed before any real rapprochement can be expected. On this point, the latest issue of The People's Tribune, a journal which ably champions China's viewpoint on major questions of the day, has some pertinent remarks to make. "We would heartily welcome the disappearance of anti-Japanese sentiment in this country," it remarks, "and would rejoice to see Japan recognised by the Chinese people as a friendly neighbour, with sympathetic understanding of our difficulties and a genuine desire to alleviate our sufferings and assist our progress—but we see no hope of such a happy state of affairs coming about until there is a great change not only in China's outlook, but in that of Japan, as so plainly expressed by her policy since 1931. The spectacle of armed men of an alien race watching vigilantly for what they consider to be hostile 'tendencies' is not calculated to promote the friendship they profess to be anxious to establish, nor do memories of 1931-32 provide quite the right kind of atmosphere for tendencies otherwise than hostile to develop." This brings the main source of trouble between the two countries down to realities. In view of past encroachments on her territorial integrity, China's resentment against Japan's penetration is quite understandable, and the situation is certainly not helped by constant threats of force. Friendship cannot be built up on such a basis. If Japan considers that she has a grievance against China, it is the essence of statesmanship to endeavour to discover the underlying causes and seek their removal. There are indications at the moment that

NOTES OF THE DAY

NEW MAN—NEW HOPE

The change in the British Cabinet is more than a tweedledum-tweedle affair. There is a new occupant of the Foreign Office, Sir Samuel Hoare. Of his measure in foreign affairs none can speak with certainty. But a new broom always sweeps clean, and there can be no doubt that on this account alone the shift is of considerable significance in Anglo-American relations, says an American commentator. Under the old regime several misunderstandings had arisen. They all revolved around the head of Sir John Simon for his handling of the Manchurian affair. Several times the American State Department found itself mistaken when a common line of action had seemingly been laid down. Whatever the merits or demerits of the misunderstanding, it cut deep, and none knows better than the observer on the American side of the Atlantic how wise Mr. Baldwin has been in the manner of his office sweeping.

ANGLO-AMERICANISM

In this connection Sir Samuel takes up his portfolio at a time when Mr. Baldwin has reaffirmed his Anglo-Americanism. His friendly reference to the United States was promptly reciprocated in Washington. For the moment collaboration in the realm of gesture. America awaits a settlement of European troubles in the hope that the nations will once again be able to sit around a disarmament table. America will hardly be much interested until that hope returns. As for an American place in any collective security system, that at present is not practical politics, but the United States may soon be ready with a negative, if not a positive, contribution. Six months ago Mr. Baldwin said that he would never consent to the use of the British Navy as a League policeman till he knew what America would do. The risk was too great. What he meant was that he did not wish to see any entanglement with an American engaged in asserting its neutral rights to trade in wartime. America, however, is showing every disposition to withdraw such insistence.

THE PROOF OF GUILT

Until a few days ago it was possible to maintain that there were three classes of exceptions to the fundamental of English justice that a man is to be presumed innocent until he is proved guilty. Now there are only two such exceptions. This is the immense constitutional significance of the recent decision of the House of Lords, which, sitting as the supreme court of the realm, has quashed a verdict of wilful murder. In an English law court it is not any part of the accused's task to prove himself innocent; his innocence is assumed until the prosecution proves his guilt. To this rule there are two kinds of exception. One is in respect of certain classes of statutory offences and the other is where the defence sets up a plea of onus of proof lies with the defence. The third exception, upheld early in 1935, can be upheld no longer. It is established that, in cases of homicide, as in most others, innocence is presumed until guilt is proved. This is typical of the British in matters of law. British justice is lenient toward the prisoner. It would rather that nine guilty people escaped than that one innocent man were punished. Today in the United States there is a feeling that this attitude may tend to encourage wrong-doing. And on the American Continent, where the vastness of the area in which criminals may operate and hide, and where frontier traditions, a mixed population and antiquated laws make problems which British law enforcers do not have, such doubts may have some basis. In Great Britain, however, the exact opposite is the case. Since every prisoner is assured of a fair trial in a British court, there is at any rate none of that false romance about lawbreakers which is one obstacle to administration of justice in the United States.

China's leaders are not by any means indisposed to come to a better understanding with Japan. But no settlement is possible with one side making all the concessions. Japan has a first-class opportunity of showing to the world that she really aims at that peaceful and lasting adjustment of Far Eastern friction which her statesmen have repeatedly professed in recent times. The whole world will await her reaction to the appeals being made from many quarters that she should base her China policy on goodwill and concord.

AUSTRIAN REPUBLIC
DEMOLISHED?

BY FRANCIS GUNTHER

Vienna. The Austrian Government has issued new history text books for its grade schoolchildren. In the last chapter the World War is dismissed in a few lines. The abdication of Kaiser Karl is lamented for half a page. The account then dwells on the patriotic services of Chancellors Seipel and Dollfuss and closes on the glories of the new Corporative State.

Not a single word is mentioned of the Austrian Republic. This Republic, which from 1918 to 1934, a period of sixteen years, was a model of democratic government, as close to the ideal Platonic Republic as the world has ever seen, is thus obliterated.

Under the Republic Austria surmounted the hard, lean after-war years. Under the Republic, which was not Socialist, but was democratic, its capital, Vienna, which was both Socialist and democratic, became the world's first city in the housing and care of its citizens, in the health and education of its youth, in that free expression of the human spirit which is the only basis of culture.

The upkeep of that culture and that Republic soon became unbearable to the former privileged classes, accustomed for centuries to think of organised society in terms of private profit, not of municipal gardens. When this class again manoeuvred itself into power and gained control of the Government, the Republic was doomed.

A year ago the Austrian Government, to the amazed horror of the whole civilised world, trained machine-guns and artillery on their own citizens, barricaded in model flats suddenly turned into fortresses, and when they refused to surrender, fired.

The Government patched up the hundreds of artillery holes that gaped in the facades of the municipal tenements. But the artillery holes in the minds of the population the Government have not succeeded in patching up. These are still gaping.

Under cover of their artillery fire the Government dissolved the Social-Democratic Party, creator of the Republic. But much more than that, the Government succeeded in doing what years of Moscow propaganda failed to do. The Social-Democratic Party is dissolved. Of that there is not the slightest doubt. The Austrian Government may pride itself on the thoroughness of its dissolution.

But out of its ashes have arisen:

1. The Revolutionary Socialists of Austria.
2. The New Communist Party of Austria.
3. The New Schutzbund (Republican Guard).
4. The Revolutionary Socialist youth.
5. The Communist Youth Organisation of Austria.
6. The new workers' sport and culture organisations.
7. The Socialistic Workers' Aid.
8. The Rote Hilfe (Red Aid).

The Austrian Government was not 100 per cent. guilty of the crime of Feb. 12, 1934. Nor were the Social-Democrats 100 per cent. innocent. But for the resultant fact that the Social-Democratic Party has turned revolutionary, the Government has only itself to blame.

It must be clearly kept in mind that the Social-Democratic Party always placed the emphasis on the "Democratic," not on the "Social" or "Socialist." It believed in democracy, in free speech, in free assembly. It lived for that belief, it died for that belief.

In 1918, for a brief period, the Social-Democratic Party had control of the country. It could have declared a dictatorship of the proletariat. It could have dissolved the Christian-Social Party. It could have dissolved all other parties. Even as late as 1933, when free elections gave it 60 per cent. of the country, it could, by a snap of the fingers, have wiped out the Heimwehr and put Prince von Starhemberg in a concentration camp.

But it did none of these things—because they were not democratic.

Well, those days are over.

Nowadays, even Otto Bauer, for years the conservative leader of the Social-Democratic Party and its bulwark against the inroads of Communism; nowadays even old Dr. Bauer thunders in his article in the illegal Arbeiter Zeitung: "The days of February, 1934, have taught us an impressive lesson. At that time we buried not only our dead, but also our errors and illusions. A whole epoch in the history of the Austrian working-class movement came to an end. The Austrian workers believed that Socialism could be realised by democracy, in peace. The Fascists have shot democracy to pieces. They have taught the Austrian workers that there is no other choice: either the dictatorship of Fascism or the dictatorship of the proletariat."

Whether or not one agrees that there actually is no other choice, whether or not one would find the one dictatorship as odious as the other, the fact remains that it is the Austrian Government that has driven the Social-Democratic Party to this revolutionary slogan. It has become the watchword of the 60 per cent. of Vienna and the 40 per cent. of the country that were once absolutely constitutional and democratic.

Under the eyes of the secret service men, spies, stool-pigeons, police, gendarmes, Heimwehr, Ostmark Storm Troops, priests, and the Army, the underground work of the new revolutionary organisations goes on. Everything that a dictatorship can do to stop it, from hanging to concentration camps, is done. But the underground work goes on. Every week, 300,000 copies of the Arbeiter Zeitung, brilliant and bitterly composed in exile by Bauer, one of the great pamphleteers of our time, slip like fog over the border. They pass from hand to hand like a handshake, and reach half a million readers.

Each of the eight revolutionary organisations listed above has its own party organ, printed, mimeographed, typed, set between paper covers marked Cook-book or Kriminal-Roman. When the police unearth one printing-press the work is done on another.

The old Social-Democratic Party machine has been re-

The Very Idea!

STABILISATION

Kelly Tries His Hand At High Finance

(By Eddie Kelly, Silver Head) Mr. Edward Kelly, the well-known financial wizard, has decided to issue a clarion call or two to the Hongkong public to rally round and help him solve the silver problem.

The fact that Hongkong's currency is in a deplorable state has been brought to his attention lately by two incidents. The first concerns a forged $100 note he has been trying to dispose of. The second incident—but perhaps you'd better hear what Mr. Kelly has to say himself.

SPEAKING from the depths of experience we think that the more we think of Hongkong's silver problem the less we should think about it.

We refer, of course, to our chopped dollar.

What this Colony needs is an expert to guard its currency. Like us, for instance.

First thing we'd do would be to visit all the shops that chop dollars. We'd close up their chops. This would teach them not to metal with our silver coins.

Silver is obtained in veins and seams, by miners who labour in vein. How vein it seams.

A lot of these financial experts who, come to Hongkong reckon we should tie the dollar to sterling. Tying it, however, would be a knotty problem.

If we were appointed financial expert we would stabilise the dollar. If the Happy Valley stables weren't big enough we'd put the remainder in our room at the Y.M.C.A.

Other lands have tried different methods. For instance the United States tried to cross silver with the double-eagle. When the eagle laid its egg the yolk was bad. Hence the term "high" finance. When the U.S. Treasury officials saw the yolk was on them they started a silver campaign which has been a pain to every one since.

In order to overcome this American plan what we've got to have is a Five Year Silver Plan of our own.

Let us all lie down and put our shoulder to the wheel and pull. We all know that the only people making a dollar or two in these hard days are the counterfeiters.

Let us, then, make our own money. Prosperity is just around the corner.

Mass production! If you have a reserve fund of $2.50 now to offset your chits amounting to $125, make your reserve fund $10. Your chits can then amount to $600.

Do something. Remember you are a cog in a great world-wide financial machine, and by pulling together we will turn the corner which leads to a brighter tomorrow, always keeping in mind that there is no cloud without a silver lining, and it is always darkest before the dawn.

We could go on like this for hours and hours (hours is a Tiger beer), but the Editor wants us to get going with our stabilisation scheme.

The whole question of stabilisation hinges on the incidence of gold-silver exchange risks between Hongkong on the one hand and other silver currency centres. Actually, the only things necessary to take into consideration are the gold standard, price of silver, moratoriums, pegging the exchange, international currency stabilisation, supply and demand, exports and imports, government and private debts, interest on private investments, the demonetisation of silver and a few other odds and ends.

It will be plainly seen that with material like that, any man who couldn't evolve a system which would defy all human comprehension except his own must be a bit dull.

Now, you ask us, what is this system of stabilisation we recommend?

Well, you know that the most important matter to be considered in determining the desirability or otherwise of changing Hongkong currency to a fixed standard, pegged to either sterling or gold, is the effect which such a change would have on the trade and financial business of the Colony.

"Yes."

First of all, then, we must consider certain fundamental defects in our currency system. The chief one is that while there is an automatic contraction of the volume of the currency as soon as its exchange value drops to the lower bullion point, there is no satisfactory automatic method of expansion.

GERMANY'S DAVIS CUP VICTORY WILL MEET AMERICA IN NEXT ROUND

Prague, July 14.

Germany has qualified to meet the United States on Saturday, Monday and Tuesday next in the Inter-Zone final of the Davis Cup Lawn Tennis Competition, their team to-day beating Czechoslovakia by four matches to one. Germany's representatives, G. von Cramm, runner-up to Fred Perry at Wimbledon, and L. Henkel, both won their matches to-day, following the victory scored by von Cramm and Kay Lund against Menzel and Josef Malacek in the doubles match yesterday.

Baron von Cramm clinched the issue to-day when he was matched against Menzel in the first of the singles matches. He won by scores of 6-2, 6-4, 3-6, 5-7, 6-1.

It was a hard and thrilling match with many long rallies. The games went with the service in the first set until 3-2 was called in von Cramm's favour. Menzel's serving was not of the usual high standard and von Cramm took the next four games in a row.

In the second set von Cramm probably consisted of Allison and Van Ryn as the doubles pair, who were runners-up at Wimbledon and only fell when confronted by the powerful Australian combination, Crawford and Quist; Donald Budge, the youthful Californian star who was a quarter-finalist at Wimbledon; and Sydney Wood, semi-finalist, whom von Cramm defeated in the Wimbledon tournament to advance through the last bracket with Fred Perry, the champion.

Von Cramm and Kay Lund will probably be Germany's doubles pair, and the mighty Baron, with L. Henkel, will certainly be the singles players. Von Cramm is virtually certain of two matches, and Henkel has an even chance of winning against Budge, which therefore makes it very necessary for America to take the doubles match and for Wood to beat Henkel. A win in either of these matches will almost certainly mean Germany the honours and put her three-man team into the Challenge Round against the Davis Cup holders, Great Britain's powerful combination.

Geneva, July 14.

If a meeting of the League of Nations Council is called on July 25, it is learned here that the Italian Government will in all probability send representatives. The authorities in Rome are adopting a less hostile attitude towards the League of Nations feeling that Great Britain is unlikely to insist that League action be taken against Italy in the event of a war with Abyssinia.

Italy considers she has a very strong case to put before the League and will probably move that Abyssinia should be asked to relinquish League membership. Reuter Special.

Henkel beats Caska.

Henkel out-played and out-generalized Caska in the final match of the tie and won by 2-6, 7-5, 6-4, 6-0.

Caska began well with quick accurate play in the first set but once the German found his form his superiority was pronounced. Henkel played a great variety of strokes with masterly technique. Reuter.

NO MORE MARKETS FOR JAPAN

CANADA'S FIRM ON POLICY

Ottawa, July 13.

The retiring Japanese Ambassador to London, Mr. Matsudaira paid a brief visit to the Japanese Ambassador to Washington, Mr. Saito, who is at present here, before continuing his journey to Tokyo.

There was no conference arranged with Canadian officials, because of which it is interpreted that the Japan-Canada trade controversy will be conducted by the Japanese Minister to Canada and the Canadian Minister to Japan.

The Prime Minister of Canada, Mr. R. B. Bennett, although admitting that fifty per cent. of the Japanese surplus on Canadian goods would have an adverse effect on Canada's trade and also that he was hoping to bring about a compromise, indicated that he had no intention of opening more Canadian markets to Japanese products.

This, he indicated, was due to the dissimilarity of the wage and living standards between the two countries. United Press.

was concerned, was May 18. That was a Saturday, and Mr. D'Almeida, who, in Court, Mr. D'Almeida, however, informed the Magistrate that he was feeling ill and requested an adjournment. This was also granted.

WITNESS DISAPPEARS.

The witness, Wong Piu-sang, who, in his view, was an important witness in this case, disappeared after this sitting. He was never seen again in the course of the proceedings which went on for sometime thereafter. When on May 23 the parties appeared in Court and Mr. D'Almeida was ready to cross-examine and requested the attendance of Wong Piu-sang, he was informed that that witness was no longer present and was in Canton. Mr. D'Almeida then proceeded with the cross-examination of the other witnesses. He also made certain submissions to the Magistrate, one of which was that he had not been able to cross-examine this man, Wong Piu-sang. He was overruled on this point, and, in due course, he called the fugitive to give evidence. The fugitive, however, was committed.

Counsel then referred to certain parts of the judgment of the Magistrate. He said that in one passage, the Magistrate had stated that from the evidence of both sides it was clear that there was a prima facie case against the fugitive. The Magistrate also said that there was no evidence that the case was a political one, and added that in an extradition case less evidence was needed for committal than in a criminal case.

NEW PRINCIPLES.

Continuing, Mr. Jenkin said: If the learned Magistrate is there attempting to set principles of English law, he had stated principles which are entirely unknown to me. He has either been misled into this view of the principles pertaining to his duty or his matters or he has come across it in some authority which I know not.

Counsel then went on to say that he based his arguments on two points. The first point was that the law will not look at any evidence which had not been adequately decided by cross-examination. The second was that although the sufficiency of the evidence required to put the man up for trial or for extradition was entirely a matter for the Magistrate, yet if he had gone wrong in law in weighing that evidence, his committal must be quashed.

Counsel then quoted authorities at great length in support of his two points, after which he stated that the reservation for cross-examination was asked for and granted. There was no suggestion, he said, that Mr. D'Almeida was fooling at the time when he reserved his cross-examination, hoping against hope that the witness, Wong Piu-sang, would run away. Unless he was pressed that the reservation for cross-examination should take place on the day in question, counsel submitted that the matter was finished.

"It is useless for the Crown," went on counsel, "to come and say that Mr. D'Almeida had the opportunity of cross-examining the witnesses and that he had declined. My case in regard to the evidence is that if you do not look at the evidence given by Wong Piu-sang, there is no evidence at all on the deposition against the fugitive. The summary of the evidence is this:—That this man (the fugitive) was a partner in the pawnshop in Canton. This pawnshop from time to time

TAX ON WEALTH OPPOSED

ROOSEVELT'S PLANS OPPOSED

SPLIT OVER ISSUE

(Special to "Telegraph")

Washington, July 14.

President Roosevelt, in his proposal to increase taxes on the wealthy, is moving towards another test of strength with the forces which have battled with him over the Wheeler-Rayburn Utilities Bill.

Over the week-end, opposition to the Wealth Taxation Bill has developed, with only two witnesses from the Ways and Means Committee endorsing the proposals to increase inheritance taxes, and taxes on corporation and higher category private incomes.

On the other hand there were thirty witnesses opposing the issue. President Roosevelt is handicapped in the impending struggle by a division in his own ranks, since some members of the Administration are showing only a lukewarm sympathy with the new tax proposals. These include Senator Pat Harrison, Democrat of Mississippi, who has warned the Administration that there is a limit to taxation. United Press.

accepted pledges. That shop shuts its doors and this man in common with other partners left Canton and was next seen here in Hongkong. That was three years ago. I submit that it is all the evidence against him. He was the manager and looked after the business. When the shop closed, he came down to Hongkong.

MAGISTRATE WRONG.

Dealing with the second point, Mr. Jenkin said that the Magistrate was master of the situation entirely, provided that he always applied the proper principles. The thing was obvious that he had proceeded on an entirely wrong line by stating that in committing the man for surrender for extradition he need have less evidence if he could. He was wholly wrong on this and was against all principles, including the Magistrate's Ordinance itself. He had been hopelessly misled by somebody. Furthermore, the Magistrate had also suggested in giving his decision that if there were any doubt at all, the doubt was one for the prosecution. It was so novel, said Counsel, that it would be most dangerous for the Magistrate to take such a view.

In reply to His Lordship, Counsel admitted that he had no authority for this argument but was doing so on principles. If the Magistrate had applied the proper principles, he submitted, the fugitive should have been discharged.

Replying for the Crown, Mr. Fraser said that he was rather surprised that such an application should have been made by such a learned and experienced counsel as Mr. Jenkin.

DECLINED TO CROSS-EXAMINE.

"It is alleged," continued Mr. Fraser, "that there was no opportunity for cross-examination and in that matter I will briefly refer to the fact that is set out in the affidavits of Mr. Lockhart-Smith and Inspector Shannon. They show briefly that on May 16, Mr. D'Almeida was unable to attend and the fugitive was then represented by his son; that the witness, Wong Piu-sang, was in Court; that Mr. D'Almeida, Jr., declined to cross-examine him; and that on May 18 the same thing happened when Wong was in Court. The matter of cross-examination had been strongly urged by my friend on the basis that English law does not allow the introduction of evidence which has not been cross-examined, and up to a certain point I agree with him. But are we proceeding under the common law? This application for extradition is purely statutory and is a thing not recognised by common law. It is true in the Magistrate's Ordinance and in the Chinese Extradition Ordinance which follows the lines of English Acts, the same procedure had been applied, but Your Lordship will see from the Extradition Ordinance that even depositions taken outside the Colony are in certain cases admissible in proceedings in Hongkong.

Mr. Fraser then reviewed the evidence at great length, and contended that the application must be dismissed.

In dismissing the application, His Lordship said that the Magistrate was empowered to conduct matters as if he were conducting proceedings with a view to committal of the fugitive. Assuming that the evidence of the witness, Wong Piu-sang, had an important bearing on the case, he felt that the Magistrate had other ample evidence from other witnesses to come to the decision which he had given.

IN LIFE'S SORE STRAITS BRAVE AND DISPLAY TRY COURAGE; BOLDNESS IS WISDOM THEN.—Horace.

Baer And Wife At Parting Of Ways?

MAX BAER

DIFFERENCES OF RELIGION

DENIAL BY THE BRIDE

New York, July 10. Max Baer, said the New York Daily News in a copyrighted story, announced last night he and his bride of 10 days have parted company "because of religious differences."

But the wife of the former world heavyweight champion, the erstwhile Mary Ellen Sullivan, quickly denied there had been a rift.

The News said Baer and his wife would confer with regard to a separation later this week, before he enters a hospital at Baltimore for treatment for his hands. He injured them in the June 13 battle in which he lost his crown to Jimmy Braddock.

The Livermore Advertiser, said the Daily News, announced the alleged rift at a party which he attended in company with Mary Kirk Brown, his former fiancée. Mrs. Baer—meanwhile was at her home at Long Branch, N. J.

"She wanted to get married again by a Catholic priest but because I was Jewish I refused," Max was quoted as saying. "Then—well, I never knew she took religion so seriously."

Mrs. Baer laughed later as she denied she and Max had had any trouble. "There's nothing to it," she said. "I did not feel like going to New York with Max and I suppose someone seeing him immediately thought the worst. We are very happy. I talked to Max at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and if there was anything wrong then he failed to mention it."

Mrs. Baer was the manager of the Hotel Willard restaurant at Washington until the Californian led her to the altar at the national capital on June 25.

Max, N. Y., gave her age as 32 and Max said he was 26. They went to New York on the honeymoon.

Max is preparing for a bout here in September with Joe Louis—the "black menace" from Detroit—who recently made pulp of giant Primo Carnera. Max remarked that Louis "has everything," but wondered whether "he can take it."—Associated Press.

EPSOM DOWNS CONTROL

MAP PREPARED

Epsum, June 18. A bill is to be drafted which, if passed, would "regulate and control" the famous Epsum Downs.

Epsum and Ewell Urban Council this evening decided that the Clerk, with the solicitors of the Epsum Grandstand Association, shall instruct the Council's Parliamentary agents to draft a private Bill which it has been agreed to promote for the regulation and control of Epsum Downs and Walton Downs.

The draft will then be submitted for consideration by the council of the Grandstand Association, and other interested persons.

Alderman Chuter Ede, chairman of the Surrey County Council, and of the Common and Downs sub-committee of the Urban Council, said the matter was of the greatest importance, not merely to the district, but to the very large public which used Epsum Downs.

If the Bill became an Act it would put an end to outstanding disputes.

An agreed map had been prepared which showed what were to be regarded as enclosures that

BLANKED OUT BY TED LYONS

DOUBLE HEADER SHARED

New York, July 14. The New York Yankees, now being offered a serious challenge by Detroit Tigers for the top position of the American Baseball League, to-day suffered another defeat when playing the Chicago White Sox.

The teams were engaged in a double header which was shared, the Yankees winning the second contest after having been blanked out in the first by Ted Lyons.

The Detroit Tigers, however, were also beaten to-day, the Philadelphia Athletics winning a match that went to ten innings.

A match between Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox had to be abandoned after the scores were tied, the Sunday law preventing the match from going beyond the tenth innings.

In the National League, the New York Giants were beaten by Pittsburgh Pirates by four runs to two.

The coming of the small car had enabled people to get to Epsum Downs, and on occasions they littered the place with paper and with broken glass that made the training of racehorses occasionally a matter of danger, both to animals and men.

The Association had accepted a suggestion from the Council that there should be a car park on Epsum Downs, to which admission should be free.

There would be a provision in the Bill whereby the Urban Council would secure a majority of the representation on the Board of Conservators to be established.

WIMBLEDON CHAMPIONSHIPS

First of Series of Articles

The first of a series of articles on the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships by "Veritas," the well-known sports writer of the Hongkong Telegraph, appears to-day. "Veritas," for the opening rounds, will confine himself to the Japanese players because, until the later rounds, they are of more interest to local readers, to many of whom they are known personally, than some of the European players.

CHICK HAFEY RETIRES

From Professional Baseball

Cincinnati, June 30.—Charles (Chick) Hafey, a mainstay of the Cincinnati Reds, has gone to his California home to recover his health and probably will be lost to the club for the remainder of the season, it became known to-day.

Described as a "very sick man" by Jim Bottomley, Reds first baseman and perhaps Hafey's closest friend, the slugging outfielder departed with his wife by automobile for Walnut Creek, Calif., yesterday.

Hafey was laid up by a cold in Philadelphia about a month ago, and had been unable to play since. He also was suffering with a sinus infection.

Bottomley said Hafey told him he did not intend to return until he was

JAPANESE AT WIMBLEDON

YAMAGISHI QUALIFIES AGAINST DE MORPURGO

OPENING DAY ON WORLD'S FAMOUS TENNIS COURTS

(By "Veritas")

Wimbledon, June 24.

Nishimura, the Japanese Davis Cupper and No. 2 national ranking player, although to-day enjoying the distinction of appearing on the No. 3 court which is bounded on one side by the new free concrete stand at Wimbledon, failed either to realise expectations or to live up to his reputation as an international player destined to become as famous as his late compatriot, Jiro Satoh.

Playing a nervous type of game and almost completely devoid of the subtleties and finesse which he exhibited in Hongkong, Nishimura fell a first round victim to G. Palmieri the Italian ace, losing by the scores of 2-6, 6-3, 3-6, 4-6.

Palmieri's ease of style which bordered on the psychomotorial appeared to have an adverse effect on Nishimura, who was plainly disconcerted by the Italian's quick baseline recoveries and his passing drives with which he answered the Japanese volleys and overhead smashes.

NISHIMURA'S MISTAKE

Nishimura, encouraged by the state of the court which called for hard hitting, endeavored to drive the Italian off the green rectangle; but this was Nishimura's supreme mistake. Palmieri thrived on his opponent's driving which was not always of the best length and usually managed to add more pace and get nearer the lines in his return shots.

Palmieri's baseline game was so sound that it required more strokes variation on the part of Nishimura to beat the Italian. Nishimura, however, losing confidence over a couple of unsuccessful net excursions early in the match and unwilling further to risk mistakes by the adoption of more delicate drop shots, continued to slam the ball to the feet of the invulnerable Palmieri.

Nishimura attacked strongly in the second set, but Palmieri never appeared to be worried and smilingly lost the set chiefly on his own errors.

It was the Italian and fourth sets when he continually placed the armour of a rapidly tiring Nishimura. Palmieri exposed an unsuspected weakness in Nishimura's array of strokes when he attacked his backhand court with a series of stinging backhand drives.

Palmieri was undoubtedly the better player; he possessed a great variety of shots and made much better use of the court.

NICE WORK BY YAMAGISHI

Yamagishi's win at the expense of Baron H. L. de Morpurgo was as comfortable as he could expect against a player with such an impressive international record. After an indifferent start during which period he found the outside confines of the court more often than the inside, Yamagishi found his touch and proceeded to drive brilliantly on both hands. His work in the forecourt was also neat and he rarely wasted an advance to the net.

It was a Yamagishi incomparable to the player seen in a friendly exhibition in Hongkong last year. He was just as volatile but so much more consistent. He made full use of easy openings and tinged a display of fine all-court tennis with an occasional form of a shot which completely confounded the former Italian Davis Cup player.

GREATLY IMPROVED PLAYER

Not the least impressive thing about Yamagishi's display was the unbounded confidence with which he made his strokes. There was a fluency in his racket-wielding which stamped him not only as an improved player, but one who might easily become a real danger to any of the seeded competitors.

My impression was that whereas Yamagishi had quickly adapted himself to the varying conditions of the English grass courts and had, in fact, improved his stroke production, Nishimura had found the contrast anything but to his liking and would obviously be a much more powerful performer on a hard surface.

ABSOLUTELY O.K.

"Absolutely O.K." even if it necessitates his quitting baseball. Hafey had been troubled by illness in the early part of each season ever since he came from the St. Louis Cardinals to the Reds in 1933.

Macphail said that Hafey can apply to Ford Frick, President of the National League, to be placed on the Voluntary retired list and can ask that he be reinstated within 60 days.

BOXER TURNING FILM STAR

MARCEL THIL AS GANGSTER

STARTING CAREER IN AUGUST

Paris.—Marcel Thil, the world middle-weight boxing champion, will soon turn film star.

After his fight against Candel, at the Stade Roland Garros on June 28, he will have four more open-air fights, and will then become a "gangster."

This bald-headed, amiable boxer has often said that if he was not world champion he would like nothing better than to play gangster roles on the screen, and now he is to get his chance.

He will star as a "tough" in a full-length film after the type of "Cheri-Bibi," with Gaston "Le-toux."

Mr. Alex. Taitard, his manager, states that Thil's film career will start during August.

Meanwhile he is in training at Jeff Dickson's camp at the Ile St. Maurice.

PERCY ALLISS AGAIN!

BRILLIANT WIN IN SCOTLAND

ROUND OF 66

London, June 20. Percy Alliss (Beaconsfield) is the man of the moment in professional golf. He won the inaugural three-day Scottish Open championship yesterday with an aggregate of 273 for the 72 holes on the King's course at Glengauls.

Less than a fortnight ago he was runner-up for the Leeds tournament, beaten in a great fight by Henry Cotton. A few months ago Alliss won the Italian Open championship with the wonderful aggregate of 262, with 67 as the worst of four rounds.

Glengauls King's course is a more severe test, and his aggregate of 273 has only been beaten in tournaments held over courses of much shorter length. Glengauls is made for championship play, and the British women's event has been held there.

The most remarkable feature of Alliss's performance is that he broke the record by returning 66 for his final round, on which he had progressed only a few holes before he knew that a 69 was required. He had to beat a man who had already set a hot pace—J. J. Bussan having finished with 277. That 66, however, spreadeagled the field. His success yesterday will make him a strong fancy for next week's British Open.

Alliss had four strokes to spare from J. J. Bussan, who was second, with R. Burton, the first pace-maker in the final round, third. Burton had also beaten an average of 70 strokes per round with his aggregate of 279. All three had, during the four rounds, equalled the original record of 67 once, before Alliss lowered the figure.

There was a spate of low scoring at the close of the day. Ernest Whitcombe, Syd Easterbrook, and W. J. Cox all having a final round of 68, while A. M. Chevallier went one better with 67. In all cases they were too many strokes behind to stand any chance of catching Alliss. The first amateur was Mr. J. Lindsay (Glasgow University), who was among the players with an aggregate of 294.

With the third round completed, the stage was set for a brilliantly low aggregate, as Percy Alliss led the field with 207, followed by J. J. Bussan at 209 and C. A. Whitcombe, in company with Archie Compton, at 210. Of these, Alliss alone failed to break 70. In the second, he returned a score of two under 4s, while Whitcombe and Compton finished in 69 and Bussan equalled the course record of 67.

RECORD EQUALLED
A cracking pace was set immediately the first couple finished the final round, for R. Burton (Hooton) equalled the record of 67, which gave him an aggregate of 279. It was a brilliant recovery on his part, for he had been five strokes behind Alliss after three rounds and, as events turned out, Alliss had to break 70, to lead the field.

Bussan did not start promisingly, for he put his second shot over the green at the second hole, failed to get his drive away at the fourth, and was then two over 4s. But he was to have three deuces, which considerably helped him. The first came at the fifth, where he played a glorious tee shot close to the pin. He turned in 35, and had his second two at the eleventh, where he holed from six yards. A bad second shot cost him a five at the thirteenth, but he drove to within eight yards of the pin at the fourteenth (285 yards) and holed the putt for an "eagle" two. Par figures followed, leaving him with a chance to equal record for the second time during the day. At the eighteenth, however, Bussan pulled his drive and cut his second into a bunker. He chipped out to within five yards of the pin and only just failed to hole the putt. His card read:
Out: 4, 5, 4, 5, 2, 4, 4, 3, 4—35.
Home: 4, 2, 4, 5, 2, 4, 3, 4, 5—

The idiom of cricket still pervades the game of baseball after its adoption in a limited way in England. British sport fans welcome the colour injected into the American game, but cannot forget their efforts to link it up with their own favourite summer sport. As far as equipment goes, everything was fine when Streatham was matched with Putney (above), but here is an English caption writer's description of the action displayed. "The Putney pitcher bowled a clever fast one across the 'square', which the Streatham player missed completely for a strike. The batskeeper and referee are shown. This is scarcely in keeping with American idiom."

Once he had finished, the crowd surged out to meet Alliss, who returned a round of 69 to head Bussan. Alliss started steadily enough, his long game being perfect, but he had no luck on the putting greens or his start of 4, 4, 4, 4, 3 might easily have been two shots better. He continued serenely on his way and never looked like taking a 5. Any luck on the putting greens would have given him a phenomenal score, as on fourteen greens he had only to tap the ball into the hole. During the round he required only 34 putts, and that might easily have been 30. Only once did he hole a long one, at the sixth where his ball dropped from six yards. The fifteenth saw his one and only bad shot, for he was bunkered, but chipping out neatly Alliss holed from a yard for his three, and then went on to complete his wonderful record with the following figures:
Out: 4, 4, 4, 3, 3, 4, 3, 4—33.
Home: 4, 3, 4, 4, 3, 4, 3, 4—33. Total 66.

Chinese Bathing Club Win Invitation Race

The Victoria Recreation Club's night gala last Saturday evening was attended by a large and distinguished gathering, among those present being His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, Sir Thomas Southern, and Lady Southern, Commodore C. G. Sedgewick and Mrs. Sedgewick, and Capt. J. R. Cragg, A.D.C.

The spectators were provided with some fine entertainment, the feature of the evening being the 200 yards invitation relay race which was won by the Chinese Bathing Club. This race was very close, the Chinese Y.M.C.A. and the Young Companions' Association, who were second, and third respectively, being only a yard or two behind.

Wilfred Lawrence again proved that he is the champion swimmer in the Colony when he covered the 50 yards free style invitation race in the fast time of 25 4-5 secs.

Dancing followed the swimming, and a large number of couples took the floor.

The results were as follows:
50 Yards Free Style Handicap (Boys under 12 years).—1, G. P. Jorje; 2, L. Gutierrez. Time: 38 1-5 secs.

100 Yards Free Style Handicap ("C" Class Aggregate).—1, N. Deltz and L. M. Remedios (Dead-heat); 3, J. J. Figueroa. Time: 73 4-5 secs, and 66 4-5 secs, respectively.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

In the majority of cases it pays for the declarer to pull the opponents' trump—“extracting their teeth,” as it were—but occasionally a different procedure is necessary and the following hand shows one of the exceptions:

NORTH
S—K-Q
H—A-10-9
D—K-Q-J
C—J-8-7-2
SOUTH—DEALER
S—J-5-4
H—K-Q-10-7-5
D—A-2
C—A-5-3

At auction, South would bid one heart, West two diamonds and with North's holding, he should jump to three hearts.

A contract, the bidding would be practically the same except that South, after North's jump to three hearts, should go to four hearts.

The Play
West, the opening leader, has a three-card suit headed by an ace, and a four-card king, queen suit. It is not generally good bridge to open a suit headed with an ace unless it is ace and small which occasionally proves profitable. Otherwise the suit should have four or five cards. Therefore West's correct opening is the king of diamonds which South, the declarer, wins with the ace.

It would seem quite natural that the declarer should proceed at once to pull the trump, but if he does, we can easily see that he must lose one spade, one heart, one diamond and one club. If he leads trump, the opponents may immediately knock out his ace of clubs and game would be lost. But if he can establish the spade suit for a club discard in dummy before the opponents can take out his ace of clubs, he can go game, therefore his correct play is the four of spades which West would win with the ace.

West would cash his queen of diamonds, and supposing he were to shift to the club suit, the declarer would win with the ace, lead a small spade to dummy's king, return a diamond and trump it, then lead his jack of spades and discard the remaining club in dummy. Declarer would then lead a trump which East would win with the ace, but the declarer has already stuffed his losing club and game would be made.

Supposing, when the declarer won the first trick with the ace of diamonds he had led a trump, East would win with the ace, play his ten of diamonds which West would allow him to hold. West should then play his king of clubs which the declarer would win with the ace. Declarer would pick up the one outstanding trump and lead a spade. West would win with the ace and would then cash his jack of clubs. East and West in this manner would obtain four tricks and defeat the declarer's contract one trick.

Retain control of a dangerous suit as long as possible.

TWO CARS STOLEN

OWNERS MAKE REPORT TO THE POLICE

Motor thieves seem to have become active again, and reports of the theft of two private cars have been made to the police.
D. Ramsay, of the Repulse Bay Hotel, reports that his two-seater car No. 1873 was taken from Statue Square by some unauthorised person on Saturday.
The theft of another two-seater car, No. 3077, has been reported by G. M. Korman. The car was stolen from outside the Majestic Theatre, Kowloon, between 9 p.m. and 11 p.m. on Saturday.
Neither car has yet been recovered.

BRITISH LEGION IN GERMANY

WELCOMED BY OLD ENEMIES

Berlin, July 14.
Hundreds of thousands of Germans who fought against Great Britain's armies during the Great War were eagerly awaiting the arrival of their former enemies today when the British Legion delegation arrived here.

The visitors have been nicknamed "the Delegation Front Line Fighters" here.

Newspapers of all shades of Nazism welcomed the British contingent of good-will soldiers cordially, declaring that the world was beginning to realize and understand that front line soldiers, and not pacifists, were necessary for keeping the peace between the nations.—Reuter.

SIX WEEKS FOR SOLDIER

KOWLOON BURGLARY SEQUEL

Wallace Jordan, of Lancashire, England, a 25-year-old private of the 2nd Battalion the East Lancashire Regiment stationed at Shamshui camp, who behaved so unusually in Court last Monday, was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

The accused was charged with having committed a burglary at No. 280 Prince Edward Road, the residence of Mrs. E. W. Blackmore, on Saturday, July 6, when it was alleged he stole half a bottle of whisky which he drank on the premises.

On his appearance this morning, a medical report was produced which stated that accused was normal and was not mentally unbalanced.

His Worship, in sentencing accused, stated that if he had nobody else to consider he would have laughed the matter off, but as he had the public to consider, accused would have to go to gaol for six weeks.

MAN AND WOMAN FIGHT

BOTH GET PRISON SENTENCE

Chan Yee, a woman stall-holder, and Chiu Ho-ping, unemployed, were both sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning for fighting in Nanchang Street, near Kilong Street, on Sunday.

Inspector Ellis stated that at about 1 p.m. yesterday second defendant stood on the footpath outside first defendant's stall and caused an obstruction. The woman asked the man to move on but he refused and said he had every right to stand there. A quarrel ensued and the man struck the woman and ran away. The woman immediately picked up a knife and chased him into a medicine shop, where he picked up a stool and again struck the woman. The woman then struck the man on the back of the head with the knife. No serious injury was inflicted.

Large Sum Allegedly Embezzled

CANTON EMPLOYEE BEFORE COURTS

70 DEPOSITORS AFFECTED

Canton, July 15.
A remarkable case of embezzlement of Postal Savings Bank deposits through signature forgery and false entries in the books, has been disclosed here following the arrest of a book-keeper attached to the Kwangtung Postal Savings Bank.

The man has now been handed over to the local courts where he is being prosecuted on a charge of embezzlement.

It is stated that the irregularities started in April, 1932, and have been going on for four years. About 70 depositors' accounts have been affected.

The breach was not discovered until recently owing to the accused man's extremely clever trick of covering up the discrepancies. The amount missing totals $97,649.—Reuter.

DOLLAR AGAIN DECLINES

MARKET UNDERTONE STEADY

The Hongkong dollar declined a further this morning, the official rate being 2s. 1½d. The business rates were 2s. 1½d. sellers and 2s. 1½d. buyers. Sellers came into the market quite freely, and the undertone is steady.

In London, silver prices declined 13/16ths on Saturday, the fall being due to India and China speculative selling and buyers holding off. Offerings, however, were not large, and the market closed steady.

In New York, silver was down one cent.

This afternoon, the dollar declined a further farthing to 2s. 1½d. The market was easier, with rates of 2s. 1½d. sellers and 2s. 1½d. buyers prevailing.

RUSSIA TO BUY IN AMERICA

(Special to "Telegraph").

Washington, July 14.
The Department of State has announced that the American Ambassador to the Soviet, Mr. William C. Bullitt and the Soviet's Commissar of Foreign Affairs, M. Maxim Litvinoff, have signed a one year Trade Pact at Moscow.

The pact will include the assurance that Russia will purchase $30,000,000 worth of American goods, in exchange for which the United States grants Russia tariff concessions similar to other countries under reciprocal trade agreements, such as Belgium, Haiti and Sweden.

The agreement is calculated to greatly expand American exports to Russia and to put an end to the long period of unsatisfactory trade relations since 1917. The export of $30,000,000 worth of American exports to Russia next year would be an increase of more than one hundred per cent. over last year's exports to Russia.—United Press.

WALKED HERE FROM SHANGHAI

Vasily G. Esposito, 34, unemployed Russian cook, stated by the police to have walked from Shanghai to Canton and from there to Hongkong, was fined $15, or 14 days, by Mr. Macfadyen in the Central Police Court this morning on a charge of arriving in Hongkong without a valid passport.

Detective-Sergeant Russell stated that the man had no papers or passport in his possession except a Shanghai registration certificate. He set out in March this year with another man and tramped to Canton, arriving in Hongkong on July 8. He had been in hospital and was discharged yesterday. Defendant was asking to be sent back to Shanghai. The police would have to write in to the Government to obtain sanction for this.

Defendant gave himself up to the police here as he was without food or money.

CORRESPONDENCE
Shanghai Exports to U.S.A.
(To The Editor, Hongkong Telegraph)

Sir.—In your issue of Saturday last, the 13th instant, under the heading "Shanghai Exports increase: Flourishing Trade with America," you quote certain statistics issued by the American Consulate in Shanghai which show that Shanghai's exports to the U.S.A. for the first half of 1935 were valued at U.S.$8,768,948 as compared with U.S.$6,613,982 for the corresponding period of 1934.

But, in view of the considerably higher rate of the Shanghai dollar for the first half of 1935, as compared with the rate of that dollar for the similar period in 1934, it is clear that the actual quantities of articles exported from Shanghai to the U.S.A. have materially increased in the first half of 1935 as compared with the first half of 1934.
